Sadat recognizes Israel, pleads for peace

Anwar Sadat makes point during address

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat recognized the existence of Israel in a speech in its own legislature Sunday and reached out to Israelis in a direct appeal to accept creation of a Palestinian state so the bells of peace can toll in the Middle East.

Neither Sadat nor Prime Minister Menahem Begin made any concessions in speeches to the Israeli Knesset (parliament) but the Armed Forces Radio quoted Sadat as telling an American television interviewer he would invite Begin to Cairo. Begin told ABC's Barbara Walters Saturday he would go if invited.

Sadat, who stepped into history as the first Arab leader to come to Israel, urged that the holy city of Jerusalem be made an open city for the faithful of Christianity, Islam and Judaism. Begin countered later by opening Israel's borders to Egyptian citizens.

Excerpted highlights of Sadat's address, Begin's reply on page 2. Reaction of local Jewish leaders to unprecedented meeting on page 13.

Although there were no concessions, both men expressed a willingness to negotiate a Middle East peace. Sadat and Begin met later at a working dinner where Foreign Ministry sources said the private talks will be much more important than the public statements.

Sadat is to leave for Egypt today and does not plan to extend his visit, Egyptian officials said.

"... We and you have reached the brink of a horrible abyss and a terrible catastrophe unless we together do not today seize the opportunity for a permanent and just peace," Sadat told the 3.3 million Israelis from the podium of their legislature, the Knesset.

He spoke for an hour from a prepared address, perspiring profusely and frequently wiping his mouth and brow with a handkerchief tucked into the right inside pocket of his charcoal gray suit.

Neither leader varied from positions previously made public about an Arab-Israeli peace though both seized the exuberance of the historic moment to go further in creating normal relations between their two countries.

But Sadat, reading from a triple-spaced, 69-page text in Arabic, said he did not make the unprecedented visit to Israel to conclude a separate peace with it. He offered a five-point peace plan to be discussed at a reconvened Geneva Middle East peace conference.

It called for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories and the creation of a Palestinian state.

His recognition of Israel's existence was not new. What was new was that he repeated it in the Israeli Knesset.

"We rejected you in the past, yes," Sadat admitted to a people who are in a state of war with his nation and fought it four times in 29 years. "We refused to meet with you, yes. We described you as the 'so-called' Israel. Yes. This did occur.

"I tell you today and I declare to the whole world that we agree to live with you in a permanent and just peace. We do not want to besiege you with rockets ready to destroy and we do not want you to besiege us similarly. We do not want reciprocal rockets of hate and bitterness.

"I have declared more than once that Israel has become a fact that the world has recognized and whose security and existence have been guaranteed by the two superpowers. Since we want peace truly and honestly, we welcome you to live in our midst in safety and security, truly and honestly."

Sadat restated some the Arab positions — creation of a Palestinian state and withdrawal from all Arab territory occupied in the 1967 Six Day War. Political observers said this could help cool the violent turmoil that has swept the Arab world in opposition to his visit.

But the Palestinians said in Beirut that he had recognized Israel and in doing so he had surrendered to the Knesset.

The Israeli Knesset building sits on the summit of a hill above the Valley of the Cross. As Sadat spoke, the old Israeli warriors of three decades and four wars sitting below the cedar podium — Golda Meir, Moshe Dayan, Yitzhak Rabin and Begin — nodded and applauded.

Sadat, wearing a charcoal suit and blue polka dot tie, said, "I would go to the end of the world (for peace), I would go to Israel." And he said his journey to Israel "could prove a radical turning point" in the Holy Land, which has seen four Arab-Israeli wars in the past 29 years.

In the center of the balcony overlooking the session, Majority Leader James Wright, D- Texas, and his U.S. congressional delegation leaned forward. Below, in the horseshoe-shaped rows of member seats arrayed in front of Sadat, Mrs. Meir cupped her hands to her ears and former Foreign Minister Abba Eban began scribbling notes.

Begin, 64, and in poor health because of an inflamed heart muscle, again extended invitations to other leaders of the Arab world to come to Israel.

"Everything must and can be negotiated," he said. Sadat, on the dais to his left, nodded occasionally or looked up at the ceiling reflectively.

"No side will present preconditions," Begin said.

Scream: 'Kill the traitor'

Palestinians denounce trip

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Even as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat personally appealed for a Palestine state before the Israeli parliament, defiant Palestinians Sunday screamed for his blood and denounced him as a traitor.

"Spill the traitor's blood. Spit in his face," demanded Zuheir Mohsen, leader of the pro-Syrian Saiqa Palestinian guerrilla group.

Saiqa distributed thousands of leaflets in Beirut refugee camps calling on the Egyptian army to "oppose this treason" and for all Arabs to "follow the traitor Sadat to the ends of the earth, to spill his blood and carry out the just sentence."

In Damascus, hundreds of Syrian and Palestinian demonstrators stormed through the capital's streets and refugee camps and shouted, "Kill the traitor. Kill the traitor."

Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, spoke shortly after dawn to some 3,000 Palestinians at a guerrilla cemetery in Beirut and sharply attacked "Sadat's abominable visit," which he said betrayed the Arab cause.

But the guerrilla leader, dressed in dark green combat uniform and wearing a military cap, added: "I hereby challenge Begin and his friends. Even the shock of Sadat cannot sink the Palestinian revolution."

George Habash, leader of the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), said in a rare press statement that the Sadat visit, and his address to the Israeli knesset, represented "the greatest and most dangerous defiance of our Palestinian masses and Arab nation" since the 1948 birth of Israel.

Habash said the Sadat visit was made possible by excessive moderation by some Arab regimes and by the PLO and called for a wide radical front joining Arab and Palestinian forces.

PLO information department director Yasser Abed Rabbo said there was a "Sadat-Begin plot" to seal a separate peace, and called on an urgent summit grouping the PLO, Libya, Iraq, Algeria and South Yemen to counter the Sadat visit.

Most of the vehement and violent anti-Sadat demonstrations around the world had spent themselves by Sunday and most wrath and anger was contained only in newspapers.

Official Damascus radio confined itself to taking issue with parts of Sadat's speech before the Israeli parliament.

"We take issue with the parts admitting the existence of Israel and giving the Jewish state the right of coexistence in the Middle East," the radio, which carried brief excerpts from the speech, said.

The radio continued to refer to Sadat as a "traitor" in reporting his various activities during his first full day in Israel but did not offer any further official comment on the address.

Al Ba'ath, organ of the ruling Syrian party, appeared in a mourning format with its front page fringed in black. The Syrian press attaked the Sadat visit in banner headlines as a "black day" and a "journey of shame."

Israeli leader Menahem Begin turns to face Anwar Sadat in reply

10-year hiatus ends

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Anwar Sadat prayed with his Moslem brethren Sunday and visited the sacred sites of the Holy City Sunday in a reverent tour that dramatized Jerusalem's triple heritage of Judaism, Christianity and Islam.

The Egyptian president, the first Arab leader to visit Jerusalem since Israel took over the entire city during the 1967 war, sat shoeless and cross-legged in the 1,250-year-old Al Aksa Mosque during a dawn prayer service marking the Moslem feast of sacrifice, Id al Adha.

Sadat, leader of the most powerful Arab state, was solemn-faced and appeared lost in private thoughts. He spoke only in unison with the 1,500 other worshipers as they chanted "Allah is great."

The imam, or Moslem preacher, noted "Arabs in all the world, through satellites and television screens," were looking to Palestine. "Abandoning Jerusalem is like abandoning Mecca," he said.

Hot television lights beaded Sadat's face with sweat as he rose, bowed and knelt five times, touching his head to kiss the carpeted floor. He fingered a small strand of prayer beads and swayed from side to side during the 45-minute prayer service.

Sadat's bodyguards remained standing and watchful in the stone and marble shrine, where Jordan's King Abdullah was assassinated in 1951 in a reprisal attack after he met Israel's Golda Meir.

Blue-uniformed Israeli police held back a crowd of thousands of Arabs cheering "Sadat — Palestine" and other slogans as the Egyptian leader later walked across the Moslem compound of Haram as-Sherif to the Dome of the Rock. He later went to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher in the old city's Christian Quarter, the spot revered as Jesus Christ's tomb.

Egyptians pray for leader

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — The people of Egypt prayed in their mosques for Anwar Sadat's success Sunday and turned their eyes and ears to Jerusalem to hear their president talk of peace in Israel, their traditonal enemy.

The normally thronged streets of this ancient city were virtually empty. Millions of people sat quietly by televisions and radios in their homes and cafes, hanging on every word of Sadat's speech to the Israeli Knesset.

Public reaction appeared highly favorable to Sadat, and he seemed certain to get a hero's welcome when he returns home today.

The Egyptian leader repeated the familiar Arab calls for Israel to withdraw from occupied Arab lands and to recognize the Palestinians' right to establish their own state, and Sadat's people cheered him for bringing that message to the heart of the Jewish state.

"The Arabs who condemned Sadat for going to Israel should feel pretty foolish right now," declared Mohammed Abdel Aal, 51, a carpenter who watched the speech at a cafe in downtown Cairo.

"While they were calling him a traitor, he was defending their cause face to face with Israel's leaders and rejecting any separate deal between Egypt and Israel," he said.

Samy Naggar, 24, a medical student, backed Sadat, but with some reservations.

"The only thing I wonder about is whether he might be going a little too fast in all of this," he said. "But this man has put his position in danger, maybe even his life, to defend the Arab cause, and yet he is maligned.

"I don't know whether it will prove to be a mistake in the end, but I do know that my respect for his courage and integrity has grown and I think other Egyptians feel the same way ... If nothing else, the whole world should be convinced that Sadat is sincere in his desire for peace."

Vice President Hosni Mobarak and millions of other Egyptian Moslems turned to face Mecca at dawn and knelt in prayer, asking Allah for a successful conclusion to Sadat's historic trip during Id al Adha, the feast commemorating Abraham's willingness to sacrifice his son, Isaac, to God.

For the first time since the overthrow of the monarchy in 1952, Egyptians were able to hear the Arabic broadcasts of Radio Israel clearly and without interference.

The government apparently stopped jamming the broadcasts for Sadat's visit. It was not known if interference would resume after he returns today.

The mosques of Cairo could not accommodate all worshipers. Thousands massed at the great Abdin Square, in the heart of the Egyptian capital near the presidential palace.

Pa. House gets budget, sets for partisan tussle

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The latest budget proposal — the Senate's solution to the six-month fight over spending and taxes — goes to the House this week and a tough challenge from the Republicans, business and probably some Democrats.

The Republicans say they are opposed to new taxes. Business says the Senate dumped too much of the tax burden on its shoulders.

And some Democrats are afraid that the Senate package may not raise the $300 million Pennsylvania's 31 state-related colleges and universities have been waiting for since last July.

The Senate proposal, passed Thursday after weeks of rancorous partisan squabbling, would increase the personal income tax from 2 to 2.1 percent and the corporate net income tax from 9.5 to 11 percent.

The senators plan to act this week on the rest of their package — a bill to tax out-of-state utilities generating in Pennsylvania and shipping gas and electricity back over the state line, and another to trim the need for new taxes by $82 million.

House Majority Leader James Manderino, D-Westmoreland, said Friday he hadn't decided whether the plan was viable.

"These are not the revenue measures of my choice, but the Senate has told us this (tax) is the only thing they could pass," he said.

Manderino said he was worried about the fiscal impact of the plan in the years ahead.

The new tax on out-of-state utilities would earn the state $48 million in 1977-78. But under a grant program which is part of the bill, the state would have to begin returning the revenues to local communities in 1979.

The increase in the corporate net income tax is expected to bring in $115 million in new taxes.

But as a concession to business the Senate revised the payment schedule for the tax. That revision is expected to cost $12 million in revenues the first year and, by some estimates, $60 million in the following year.

And even with the most optimistic projections, the package only raises $282 million — $12 million less than the $300 million the colleges want.

Because of these features Manderino said he would examine the plan to make sure "we wouldn't be getting ourselves into deeper trouble down the road."

Don Gillis, lobbyist for the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce, said the 1.5 percent increase in the CNI would chase potential investors out of Pennsylvania. He said business would do all it could to fight the plan.

Canal treaty five votes shy of Senate rejection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A United Press International poll shows Senate opponents of the Panama Canal treaties only five votes short of the 34 needed to deny the constitutional two-thirds majority required for ratification.

And with 32 senators still uncommitted, the opponents have fertile ground in which to seek the needed "no" votes, even though a majority of the uncommitted are expected eventually to support the treaties.

The poll of 100 senators or close aides showed 29 opposed or leaning against ratification of the treaties which call for turning over control of the canal to Panama by the year 2000.

Only 39 senators are committed or leaning toward ratification, far short of the 67 "yes" votes or two-third majority the Constitution requires for ratification.

The poll also lent credence to Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd's decision to put off a vote until next year.

The West Virginia Democrat, formally uncommitted himself, refused to call up the treaties this year, saying he feared senators would be guided by "emotion rather than facts."

Pro-abortion vote divides women

HOUSTON (UPI) — The National Women's Conference endorsed abortion and sex education Sunday during the most tensely emotional moment of the historic four-day meeting.

The feminist proposal advocating "reproductive freedom" divided the 2,000 delegates more severely than any of the previous resolutions — including the Equal Rights Amendment.

Yet to come was the equally controversial issue of lesbian rights.

Anti-abortion forces protested the conference decision with a floor demonstration, carrying signs that called for "equal rights for the unborn."

The protestors chanted "all we are saying is give life a chance."

A brief punching incident was witnessed during the aftermath of the vote. But Odessa Smith of Detroit refused to tell reporters why she punched Janna Zambrun of Austin, Texas.

The debate also was characterized by some pushing and shoving at the microphone where women gathered by the scores to offer amendments.

Women's Conference delegates celebrate victory over ERA vote

None of the amendments were allowed because the conference agreed quickly to vote on the issue.

Ann O'Donnell of St. Louis made an impassioned speech against the resolution and described abortion as "the flaw in the philosophy of the feminist movement."

She said feminists by supporting abortion are advocating "worst oppression than the men oppressing them."

The resolution supported the 1974 Supreme Court decision allowing abortion during the first three months of pregnancy, federal funding of abortions for the poor and sex education in the schools.

What's news

Shah doubts oil prices hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi says the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is not likely to increase world oil prices if Iran and Saudi Arabia decline to seek a raise. The Iranian leader told President Carter during a two-day visit to Washington last week he would actively try to keep oil prices down at the upcoming OPEC meeting in Caracas, Venezuela. In an interview broadcast Sunday on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program, he predicted Saudi Arabia also will decline to seek a world oil price increase next year. "I don't think the Saudis will even push for an increase," he said. He expressed doubt lesser oil producing countries could "carry the ball by themselves" and win support for an increase from OPEC.

British firemen's strike turns nasty

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's 35,000 striking firefighters warned Sunday they may try to hinder military troops drafted to put out fires unless they get a reply from the government on their demands for more pay. Ken Cameron of the Fire Brigades Union National Executive said, "So far, except for a few isolated incidents, servicemen have not been obstructed. Nor have people who have crossed picket lines to help them. "If we don't get a reply from the cabinet in the next few days, then the strike will become very bitter," he said. The warning coincided with the worst fire since the strike began last Monday. Fire raged through an industrial estate in east London's Stratford district. It was fought by soldiers using a dozen old civil defense fire trucks.

Kidnappers wanted quick money

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) — A pair of teen-age kidnappers who snatched an 11-year-old boy but were captured 15 hours later, wanted $30,000 fast so they could leave home, police said Sunday. John Reiser, 17, and Scott Joseph Timmons, 19, faced arraignment on charges of kidnapping, conspiracy to kidnap and auto theft. They were arrested during the weekend following an intense manhunt on the San Francisco Peninsula that ended when a police SWAT team smashed through a Menlo Park motel door and freed Niels Legallet, son of a wealthy San Francisco tanning company executive. The suspects wanted to make quick, easy money so they could leave the San Francisco Bay Area and get a new start in life, said Sgt. James Eldrege of the Burlingame Police Department.

Winter snow belts Midwest

NEW YORK (UPI) — A winter snow storm and biting cold besieged the Northern Plains and upper Mississippi Valley Sunday, burying parts of Wyoming, Montana and South Dakota under more than a foot of snow and stretching east into Upper Michigan. In many areas, it snowed from Saturday evening through Sunday evening. Fourteen inches fell on the eastern Wyoming cities of Douglas and Casper, 13 inches fell at Broadus, Mont., 12 inches at Ellsworth Air Force Base near Rapid City, S.D. and at Fargo, N.D., and 10 inches at Sharon and Abercombie, N.D. A foot of snow was reported near the Eisenhower Tunnel on Interstate 70 west of Denver. Salt Lake City was hit with eight inches overnight, including five inches within two hours.

Greek leader claims re-election

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Prime Minister Constantine Caramanlis claimed victory in the Greek national election early today but his share of seats in the new parliament will be drastically reduced. The Socialist party led by Andreas Papandreou moved into second place with a dramatic advance, ousting the liberal Democratic Center Union of George Mavros. With half the vote tabulated, Caramanlis had 42.7 percent of the votes and Papandreou 24.8 percent. On this basis, officials predicted Caramanlis would gain about 175 seats in the 300-seat parliament and Papandreou about 90. In the old parliament, Carmanlis had 216 seats and Papandreou 15. The Democratic Center Union had 60 seats and now was expected to have only 16. The electoral officials predicted the Communist party would get nine seats and more than eight percent of the vote.

Russians all out of Somalia

MOGADISHU, Somalia (UPI) — The Soviet Union completed the withdrawal of thousands of its experts and technicians Sunday, one week after Mogadishu ordered the Soviets expelled from Somalia because of Russian aid to Ethiopia. The Soviets had sent 10 planeloads of their citizens home from Mogadishu since Tuesday, when the airlift began.

Carter's insulation drive may sink on price, quality

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Investigation indicates President Carter's drive to insulate nine out of every 10 American homes by 1985 may run afoul of rising prices, inadequate supplies and low quality insulation products.

Gerald Tebeau, an economist with a House energy subcommittee, says the home insulation market is already hardpressed to meet the demands of energy-conscious homeowners.

Studies conducted for the government indicate the spate of energy legislation proposals still pending before Congress will aggravate this problem and, without careful preparation, will increase the hasty, unregulated production of poor quality insulation.

"In some ways, they (the insulation proposals) could become sort of a pipe dream if not properly implemented," Tebeau said.

The energy legislation proposals include federal tax credits, grants and loans designed to persuade Americans to insulate their homes.

There is a program to determine the energy efficiency of schools, hospitals and public buildings. There are programs to test new energy approaches in government buildings.

But Tebeau said production of mineral fiber insulation is already straining the capacity of existing plants.

Suppliers of new types of insulation, with new ways to install them, are rushing into business at a clip that raises serious quality-control questions.

The National Association of Home Builders also called insulation shortages "a national problem" in a recent report, saying, "As far as we can determine, all manufacturers are shipping on an allocation basis. They are taking on no new customers."

A study conducted by ICF Inc. suggested excessive demand might inflate prices, at least in the short run, and said that would "negate or partially offset any positive effects the tax credit might provide."

Tebeau said accurate data on what has happened to insulation prices so far "is confused and hard to come by," with some sources contending they have multiplied and others claiming little change.

More important, he said, is the need to pay more attention to quality and safety standards in home insulation products, an aspect largely neglected so far.

Highlights of Sadat address

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Highlights of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's speech before the Israeli Knesset Sunday:

"...We and you have reached the brink of a horrible abyss and a terrible catastrophe unless we together do not today seize the opportunity for a permanent and just peace."

"...So long as the (Palestinian) problem remains without a solution the conflict will escalate and assume new dimensions.

"In all truth, I tell you that peace cannot be achieved without the Palestinians. It would be a gross mistake, the consequences of which nobody can realize, to turn our eyes away from that problem or set it aside.

"If you have found the legal and moral justification to establish a national home on a territory which was not all yours, then you had better understand the determination of the people of Palestine to establish their own state once more in this land."

"With all the international guarantees you have asked for there should be no fear of a newborn state that needs the help of all the countries of the world for its establishment. When the bells of peace toll, there will be no hand to beat the drums of war.

"And if any hand exists, its sound will not be heard and you can imagine with me a peace agreement reached in Geneva which we would joyfully herald to the world, which thirsts for peace."

"Even the United States of America, your first ally, which is supremely committed to protection of the existence of Israel and its security, which has given and is giving to Israel every moral, material and military support — I say even the United States of America has chosen to face the reality and to recognize that the Palestinian people have legitimate rights and that the Palestinian problem is the core and crux of the conflict."

"No one could conceive that the president of the biggest Arab state could declare his readiness to go to the land of the adversary while we are still in a state of war."

"I became convinced after deep thinking that my responsibility before God and the people requires me to go to the end of the world, even to come to Jerusalem to address the members of the Knesset, the representatives of the Israeli people, and to lay before them all the facts I have on my mind. I would then leave you to decide for yourselves, and then let God do what he wills.

"Ladies and gentlemen, there are moments in the life of nations and peoples at which persons who have wisdom and vision must look beyond the past..."

"I truly tell you that peace will not be real unless it is based on justice and not on the occupation of the lands of others. It is not permissible that you should ask for yourselves what you deny others. Frankly, and in the spirit which prompted me to come to you today, I tell you: You have to give up once and for all the dreams of conquests. You also have to abandon the belief that force is the best way of dealing with the Arabs. You have to absorb well the lessons of confrontation between us and you. Expansion will not benefit you any.

To speak with clarity, our land is not subject to compromise and bargaining. Our national soil, is , to us, as sacred as the valley in which God spoke to Moses, peace be on him. None of us has the right and none of us will accept to cede him one inch of this soil. None of us will accept the principle of bargaining or compromise thereon.

"I did not come to you in order to conclude a separate agreement between Egypt and Israel. This is not relevant in Egypt's policy. The problem is not between Egypt and Israel, and any separate peace between Egypt and Israel or between any of the confrontation states and Israel will not bring a just peace to the whole area. Moreover, if peace is established between all the confrontation states and Israel, without a just solution of the Palestinian problem, then this will never lead to a permanent and just peace which the whole world today insists on."

Bottle ban could save oil: GAO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A General Accounting Office study shows a national throwaway bottle ban could save up to 80,000 barrels of oil a day, Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., reported Sunday.

Packwood said the GAO study showed the ban also would save "millions of tons" of aluminum, steel and glass each year and reduce soft drink and beer prices by more than $1.8 billion.

Packwood is one of the sponsors of a bill to require a 5-cent deposit on all beverage containers.

The legislation is patterned after an Oregon law and similar laws adopted more recently by Michigan and Maine.

A summary of the GAO report was released by Packwood's office Sunday. President Carter's Resource Conservation Committee will release the full document today at hearings in Portland, Ore.

"I challenge President Carter to come forward in support of this vital legislation," Packwood said.

The report said the use of refillable bottles would result in job losses in the container producing industry but this would be more than offset by increased employment in beverage production, distribution and retailing, resulting in a net gain in jobs estimated at 37,000.

Jet crash killed 126

FUNCHAL, Madeira Islands (UPI) — Survivors of a plane crash that killed 126 persons described Sunday a scene of terror and panic inside the Portuguese jetliner as it overshot a foggy runway on this Atlantic island, bounced over a cliff and exploded in flames on the beach below.

Hospital officials said 39 persons among the 164 passengers and crew survived the Saturday night crash, but several were in critical condition. The injured included two members of the cabin crew and four children, aged 4 to 10.

The TAP airlines Boeing 727, on a flight from Brussels to Madeira, carried 116 Portuguese passengers, who boarded during a Lisbon stopover, and 40 foreigners including Belgians, Italians, one Spaniard and a South African. It carried a crew of eight. It was the airline's first fatal accident in its history.

"A lot of the passengers' relatives were waiting in the airport when the plane bounced over the cliff," an airport official said.

Women's issues listed

HOUSTON (UPI) — Here at a glance are the proposals adopted by the National Women's Conference:

— Arts and Humanities. The President should require that women are allowed equal opportunities in federally funded cultural institutions, grant-awarding boards and in the granting of government funding.

— Business. The President should require opportunities for women entrepreneurs in government procurement, small business loans and all federal contracting.

— Child abuse. The government should continue funding for treatment of abused children and states should provide additional services.

— Child care. The federal government should assume a major role in providing "comprehensive, voluntary, flexible-hour, bias-free, non-sexist quality child care."

— Credit. The federal government should vigorously enforce the Equal Credit Opportunity Act of 1974.

— Education. The President should direct vigorous enforcement of laws prohibiting discrimination in education, and state school systems should eliminate sex sterotyping by reviewing books and providing special training of teachers.

— Elective and Appointive Office. The President, governors, political parties and other groups should work to increase the number of women in elective and appointive office with a goal of equal membership by 1985 on all state boards and commissions.

— Employment. The President and Congress should support full employment and vigorous enforcement of antidiscrimination laws and employment, which should be extended to government workers. Veterans preference in government hiring should be limited to a one-time thing.

— Equal Rights. Amendment should be ratified.

— Health. Federal legislation should be passed to establish a national health security program, and expand the authority of the Food and Drug Administration. States should enact a patient's bill of rights.

— Homemakers. Federal and state governments should base their lives relating to marital property, inheritance and domestic relations to recognize the contribution of each spouse.

— Insurance. State legislatures and insurance commissioners should adopt the model regulation to eliminate unfair sex discrimination on the National Association of Insurance commissioners.

— International Affairs. The President should provide for more women to participate in the formulation of foreign policy.

— Media. The media should employ women in all positions and the government should continue to study the impact of sex role sterotyping in the mass media.

— Minority women. The government should recognize and remedy the double discrimination suffered by minority women on the basis of both sex and race.

— Offenders. States should reform their sentencing laws and practices to eliminate discrimination in the treatment of women in penal institutions.

Begin speech highlighted

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The following are highlights from the speech by Prime Minister Menahem Begin to the Knesset Sunday:

Let us open our countries to free movement, on people to another. Let us open to movement. You come to our country, we come to yours. I am ready to announce today that our country is open to citizens of Egypt and I make no conditions. It is only proper in this matter that there should be joint arrangements. But as of today let the number of visitors increase.

I suggest, and in the name of the majority of parliament, that we discuss and negotiate about every point...Everything must and can be negotiated. No side will present preconditions. We will conduct our negotiations with respect to the divergence of opinion.

All the people in this area are equal, and let everybody treat his neighbor with due respect, with readiness to listen to the other. Let us negotiate, to continue the negotiations, and this until we reach the good hour of signing a contract of peace, a treaty of peace.

We are ready to sit with the representatives of Jordan, Syria and Lebanon, if Lebanon is ready, at Geneva. We suggest the Geneva talks be based on decisions of Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338.

We can assure the world, of Islam and the Christian world, to all nations, that forever and ever access will be free (to Jerusalem) without hindrance to holy places sanctified to each faith. We shall defend this free access.

We wish to have normal relations between us as we have seen them in history, even after wars. We have learned from history that war is avoidable but peace is unavoidable.

No, sir, we did not take a foreign country. We came back to our homeland. Even in the dawn of humanity and never interrupted, we developed our civilization here. We had our prophets here...This is where we became a people and this is where we had our kingdom.

Santa comes to town

MOUNT POCONO — Santa Claus tackled a busy schedule Saturday, booking himself for appearances at two local department stores.

Santa arrived at Oppenheim's in the Pocono Village Mall, Mount Pocono, in a fire truck, compliments of the Pocono Mountain Volunteer Fire Department.

He was welcomed by store personnel, Mount Pocono Mayor Joseph Battisto, and mall owner Paul DeSanto. Also there were members of the Pocono Mountain High School Marching 100 Band and hundreds of cheering children.

In keeping with tradition, Santa — no doubt hustling to stay on schedule — dropped into Stroudsburg Saturday by way of a helicopter. Destination was Wyckoff's Department Store.

On hand to greet the guest of the season were members of the Stroudsburg High School Band, plus lines of parents and eager children. Wyckoff's Bill Wells greeted Santa for the store. County, borough and other officials were also on hand for the occasion.

PM band honored

By RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter

The Pocono Mountain High School Marching 100 Band gave its usual outstanding performance Saturday evening during its third Sit Down Concert in the high school auditorium in Swiftwater.

A trophy awarded the band in Easton in October during the band competition "First Flags Over The Colonies" was presented to Dr. Keith Kingsbury, high school principal, by Russell Speicher, band director and head of the music department.

The Marching 100 tied for first place at the competition, which featured seven bands. The talented musicians from the high school received excellent rating for music, marching and inspection, and outstanding for overall efficiency.

Kingsbury accepted the trophy on behalf of the school administration, faculty and students. He congratulated the members of the band, not just for winning the trophy, but for their excellent performances at football games, their spirit at pep rallies, as well as for all they do during the year. He also thanked the band parents for their help with school programs.

The concert was attended by approximately 200 people who enjoyed a variety of music, excellent routines by the band's silks squad and color guard.

It was good seeing and talking to Lawrence Wile at the concert. The former school principal, who retired in 1971, looked very good and seems to be enjoying his retirement.

Coolbaugh Township Supervisors will hold a special meeting at 1:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 25 at the township municipal building on Laurel Drive, Tobyhanna. The purpose of the meeting is to receive input, both oral and written, from residents about the use of federal revenue sharing funds for 1978. Funds presently available is $14,802.36, with $11,232 anticipated for 1978.

Also at this meeting bids will be opened for the construction of a four-stall garage, to be located at the rear of the township municipal building.

Tobyhanna Township Supervisors will hold a public hearing on a proposed zoning ordinance at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 28 at the township fire hall.

Council for the Borough of Mount Pocono will hold a public hearing for use of federal revenue sharing funds for 1978. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 28 at the borough municipal building. The amount of funds presently available is $14,802.36, and anticipated in 1978 is $11,232. Residents are invited to attend offering suggestions.

Tunkhannock Township Supervisors will hold a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 30 at the municipal building in Long Pond. The purpose of the meeting is to hear comments or receive written suggestion for the use of anticipated federal revenue sharing funds in the amount of $12,849 for 1978 and an unappropriated amount estimated at $4,559.57 at the end of 1977.

Barrett Township Supervisors will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. at the township municipal building in Mountainhome. The purpose of this meeting is to conduct a budget meeting on the proposed 1978 budget and any other business that may come before the board.

Some people have to be lead; others, without any help, walk in with both feet. This is just what I did Thursday night while having coffee at the Pioneer Diner in Mount Pocono. Francis Altemose, Tunkhannock Township Supervisor, and Eddie Alonis, Coolbaugh Township Supervisor, were having their coffee when Francis asked me if I knew why when geese are flying in V-formation that one side is longer that the other. I didn't pay attention to the glint in his eyes. If I had I wouldn't have asked, "Why?" Since I did, I'll pass this very important information on to you: "Because there are more geese on that side." I thank you Francis and the public thanks you, too, I guess.

Since the lives and thoughts of little children are close to the hearts of most women, I think I should tell you about the ambition of one little fellow I had the pleasure of talking to recently. When I asked him what he wanted most to do when he grew up, he said, "I'd like to wash my mother's ears." It seemed a fitting retribution, but I'm sure as he grows and changes, his ambition will change as well.

West End wanderings

Wind, oysters invade West End

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

It's hard to believe! It just can't be! I'm really glad that wind didn't hit my place or my house would be gone!

Those are just some of the comments that flashed through West Ender's minds this weekend as they drove past the Chestnuthill Elementary School and took a gander at a huge 20-foot-high spruce tree that was snapped off from its trunk and hurled 30 feet away during the vicious wind storm that struck the West End Thursday night.

The huge evergreen, 15 feet in diameter in places, was once a stately tree in a clump of about a dozen spruce trees that dot the edge of the playground area between the Chestnuthill School and the new John C. Mills Middle School. When the wind tore it off the main trunk, it scattered debris and small limbs in a wide path until the tree finally rested in the front lawn of the school.

School Superintendent John Nye said when the new middle school was built, there was an effort made to preserve the tall spruces, but he said three trees were damaged by the wind storm. In addition to the main tree snapped off at its base, another 10-foot high top of an evergreen was snapped off and landed upside down on a swing set.

Another tree top was broken off and lay on the playground a few feet away.

And speaking about John Nye, when he walked into the Brodheadsville Post Office the other day, everybody was wondering if he was trying to set a new fashion. Hooked onto his lapel was a bright red feather.

As it turns out, John has just as much school spirit as his students and was wearing the feather all day Friday as a positive confession that the Bears really would pluck the Cardinals of all their feathers in the upcoming football game.

Secretary Lawrence Getz tells us that the Polk Supervisors will meet at 2 p.m. Nov. 26 at the Polk School to discuss their proposed budget. The meeting will be a working session, with the proposed budget expected to be advertised sometime after that.

Oysters, oysters, everywhere. That could be the title for a new song now in the West End with the Thanksgiving holidays approaching. Oysters are one thing that traditionally go with the holiday meal here.

West Enders are most noted for their oyster filling that almost always accompanies the stuffed turkey and conventional filling. Almost any oldtimer here will tell you that the fall is the beginning of the oyster season again. (Oysters are not purchased here during any month that does not contain an "r" in it.) Housewives begin to make oyster stew on cold fall days leading into winter, but the sea food product has a special place of honor during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Some time ago we shared with you the oyster filling recipe from Mrs. Clara White of Kunkletown, who traditionally serves oyster filling with her Sunday dinners, as well as on Thanksgiving.

Here is a scalloped oyster recipe from a Kunkletown kitchen. Clean 25 oysters. Mix two tablespoons of melted fat an one cup of cracker crumbs together. Grease a baking dish and sprinkle part of the crumbs in it. Put in a layer of oysters and sprinkle salt and pepper over it. Then put in another layer of crackers and oysters and seasoning. Pour a quarter of a cup of strained oyster broth on top. Finish with a layer of crumbs on top.

Bake in a hot oven about 20 minutes until the crumbs are brown. If dried crumbs are used, one cup or more of liquid may be added.

Oysters in the West End are also cooked in a white sauce until the edges curl and are served with the sauce to which celery or parsely has been added. Or, have you ever tasted "panned oysters."

Here's how they are made. You heat a pan "over the fire," and put 25 cleaned oysters in the pan without water. You shake the pan over the fire until the oysters plump up and the edges are curled. Then you add two tablespoons of butter and a quarter teaspoon of salt and stir. They are served on toast with lemon juice sprinkled on top.

Believe it or not there still is an oyster man who travels some of the backroads in the West End going from house to house dispatching oysters into housewives' containers.

It is important, however, that the oysters really be cleaned well, especially when they are purchased fresh, because bits of seaweed or shell can attach themselves. To clean the oysters you have to take each one in your hand and remove any bits of shell.

If the liquid is to be used, it's important to strain it so that no piece of shell is in it.

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, the Western Pocono Library will close at 5 p.m. rather than 8 p.m., on Wednesday, Nov. 23. The library will be closed the week between Christmas and New Year's, also. There will be no December board meeting.

Pleads not guilty to robbery

MILFORD — Terry Soules of Port Jervis, N.Y. has pleaded not guilty to robbery and three other counts in Pike County Court.

Soules is charged with robbery, theft, felonious restraint and receiving stolen property. He is accused of holding up Don's Texaco Station in Westfall Township on Feb. 27, 1977.

His trial is scheduled for the November term of court, which starts next week.

Sadat visit historic thrust

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat made history Sunday. He also made it plain that the time for reason and moderation has come to the tangled and bitter Middle East impasse.

Until now, Sadat has lived in the shadow of his dashing, charismatic predecessor, the late Gamal Abdul Nasser. But Sadat has displayed uncommon courage, daring and imagination in presenting the Arab case to the Israeli parliament, the Knesset.

The meeting between Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin has been described as historic, and it is in both the literal and rhetorical senses of the word. How vital the meeting and Sadat's address to the Knesset are to the cause of peace; how central the tacit admission of Israel's existence and legitimacy as a nation is to a resolution of the Middle East conflict becomes more obvious with every denunciation of Sadat by Palestinian and Arab extremists.

People such as George Habash, who heads the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a radical group, yelled for Sadat's blood. The Palestine Liberation Organization called Sadat a traitor. Arab nations denounced the visit as humiliating and Syria declared a period of mourning for the duration of the visit.

It is ever thus when the signal is given that it is time to quit posturing and playing vicious games and pretending to a set of circumstances that doesn't exist. Those who have dwelled longest in the darkness start the most violently when the lights turn on. And Sadat's visit has done precisely that: It has put on the official record of Middle East history that Israel exists; that it has a right to exist unmolested and that it must be negotiated with on the points of territorial boundaries and an independent state of Palestine.

Those who are screaming "traitor!" are those who have dreamed the longest of returning to a time when their land was a homogenuous one that rippled only with the usual family arguments. Sadat has said, in effect, that the Middle East cannot revert to such a time or such a state of affairs. Israel is there to stay.

There are more reasonable ground on which to, if not criticize, then abate one's enthusiasm for the Sadat visit to Israel. In a negotiating atmosphere as charged and divisive as this one is, anything that raises the possibility of a separate peace between two of the negotiators introduces a measure of suspicion and unease that does not lend well to successful compromise. And, acknowledging that Sadat is an impulsive, gambling man of emotion and flamboyance, we wonder if this dramatic gesture might not untrack the bargaining over such delicate matters as relocating refugees, redrawing national boundaries, settling property claims and so on.

Nonetheless, the historic meeting has introduced an air of sanity and reason into a situation that at times has seemed to be the original Gordian knot. It has demonstrated that people, no matter how divided, can still talk about their positions. And it has extended hope that, if these two long-term enemies can meet in friendly fashion, so can others also divided over tribal matters.

Strangling wineries

Pennsylvania should help the wine industry, but instead leaders of this relatively new kind of enterprise say that state regulations are "strangling" them.

This is part of what is wrong with our Commonwealth. It encourages investment in wine making, seems to give the firms encouragement, and then stringently limits the merchandising of their wares.

J. Richard Nissley, head of a winery at Bainbridge and president of the Pennsylvania Wine Producers Association, told officials that the industry is in trouble.

"We need your help," Nissley said. "Let us live and make a good wine in Pennsylvania.

It is really up to the legislature to enact laws that will enable the Pennsylvania winemakers to compete with those from other states. Many of the competitors are huge firms that get a lot of cooperation from their states — notably New York and California.

The winemakers want to be allowed to set up "satellite" stores where they can sell their products, without the necessity for having winemaking machinery in the store property.

They claim they are being severely hampered because present law says they must have such machinery at sites where they sell, either in the main winery or in other locations.

One major maker in California throws out more gallons of wine a day in waste than a Pennsylvania winemaker is allowed to make and sell on his premises in a year — 100,000 gallons, the state was told.

The grievances were aired before members of the State Liquor Control Board, but the board cannot make the changes asked.

It is up to the legislature to give this young industry the chance it needs to produce more, sell more, produce more jobs, and help build the ailing state economy.

U.S. veterans, former Nazis honor the SS dead

Jack Anderson
With LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Army provided a military band and a chaplain — the music and the prayers — for a macabre meeting recently of U.S. veterans with former Nazi shock troops at an SS graveyard.

The Nazis once belonged to Adolph Hitler's dread Waffen SS, which was hated even by the regular German army. The Encyclopedia Britannica notes that Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler, the Nazis' most ruthless exponent of racism and terrorism, founded the SS.

According to the encyclopedia, this elite force became "an all-embracing empire within the Nazi state, at once the embodiment and the instrument of (Himmler's) racial theories."

Yet uniformed members of America's Eighth Infantry Division band tootled funeral music as veterans of the U.S. 70th Division laid wreaths on the graves of dead SS troops near Bucholz, West Germany, on September 26. And a U.S. military chaplain, believe it or not, pronounced an invocation over the graves.

This strange gathering was inspired by an encounter in the United States a year ago. Three German visitors from the SS Sixth Mountain Hunter Division met the brother of a dead 70th Division soldier. After some beer drinking, a reunion was planned in West Germany.

Notices were published in U.S. Army Reserve publications. All veterans of the 70th Division, known in World War II as the Trailblazers, were invited. About 80 signed up for the trip to their old battlefields in France and Germany.

The notices mentioned only that they would meet with the Sixth Mountain Hunter Division, without adding it was an SS unit. Some of the former GIs, therefore, may not have known they would share their reunion with ex-Nazi shock troops. But this seems unlikely since the SS unit opposed the 70th in both France and Germany during the war.

The Americans met the Hitler veterans formally for the first time in the French town of Epinal. The SS men laid a wreath on U.S. graves in a military cemetery near a battlefield where they had once fought.

Then the Americans, who had invaded Germany to free Europe from Nazism, journeyed with the Fuehrer's finest across the same border to Bucholz, where the high point of the reunion occurred.

First the mayor of Bucholz threw a reception for the former enemies. Then they gathered together at the graveyard. This was followed by a dinner-dance where the men of the 70th whooped it up with the SS veterans.

Gen. George Blanchard, the U.S. Army commander in Europe, must have been aware of the odd reunion since he met the next day with the 70th Division veterans. The highest ranking U.S. officer at the SS meeting, retired Brig. Gen. Theodore Mataxis, told us: "All it was was talk among people who fought 30 years ago."

Mataxis is now assistant superintendent of the Valley Forge Military Academy in Wayne, Pa. He told us he was aware the Germans were an SS unit, but noted that they had been combat troops. At the Nuremberg trials, the SS was condemned en masse with few exceptions, as a criminal organization. And for years, meetings of SS veterans were banned in postwar Germany.

Footnote: At the Pentagon, the U.S. Army did not hold back on the facts. But a spokesman said the participation of the band and chaplain was the extent of official U.S. involvement.

Solar Blackout — Rep. Mike McCormack, D.-Wash., apparently doesn't like too much sunlight. The scholarly, bespectacled former nuclear scientist isn't eager to generate electricity from the sun. In place of solar energy, he would prefer to use the nuclear power that is produced at the Hanford Project where he used to work. He also tried to block out the sunlight recently from his House subcommittee. Rep. Albert Gore, D.-Tenn., was questioning some expert witnesses about solar technology. He was developing information that would shed light on a $28 million solar project that McCormack opposed.

"We're going to have to adjourn and submit our subsequent questions in writing," snorted McCormack.

"Why is that, Mr. Chairman?" demanded Gore. "I think this has a tremendous leverage on the future. I think this program is important. I think we ought to explore it."

But McCormack wouldn't budge. "I think perhaps we'd better schedule another oversight meeting," he snapped.

"We can't go for the rest of the day?" persisted Gore.

"No," repeated McCormack. "I'm sorry, we cannot."

The transcipt, which hasn't been released to the public, shows Gore objecting: "I would like the record to reflect that, as one member of the subcommittee, I have a number of specific questions . . . and I don't have an opportunity to continue the questioning here today."

McCormack, growing more irritated, growled: "I'm sorry. We must terminate now."

Unpersuaded, Gore demanded again: "Why?"

"I'm sorry," retorted McCormack, "but it is necessary that we adjourn."

"Without an explanation?" asked Gore incredulously.

"Yes, I'm sorry," said McCormack, with finality. "The meeting stands adjourned. Thank you very much."

Footnote: McCormack told us he was compelled to end the hearing because it had lasted beyond schedule. Gore had no comment on the incident, except to say McCormack is a fair-minded subcommittee chairman. The $28 million solar project passed the House anyway over McCormack's loud objections.

Will Carter rise again?

Nicholas Von Hoffman

WASHINGTON — President Carter has hit his first nadir. All presidents have nadirs, some as often as every six months, others quite rarely. It's a result of everyone knowing that they're stuck with each other for a fixed four-year term.

Anything can bring on a nadir. Franklin Roosevelt had one once owing to a sudden loss of interest in the work. He dawdled and doodled for months near the beginning of his second term. Then he snapped out of it, which made things seem much better, and since the art of seeming and making others seem is the heart of the presidential craft, everyone immediately felt better.

Carter had not yet learned how to seem properly. The polio-crippled FDR used his handicap to seem stronger than ordinary men. One of the ways he created the illusion was not to permit the newspeople to take pictures of him being assisted or seated in a wheelchair. Thus the actual infirmities of the disease were never clearly depicted while this big, energetic torso of a man overcoming them was quite vivid.

Publicity rigors

Carter has no very obvious physical handicaps, unless you count the one noted by the New York Times recently under the headline of "Rigors of the Presidency Are Showing Up in Carter's New Wrinkles." The nub of the piece by Mr. James T. Wooten is that the old peanut farmer is breaking down at the edges: "There are new furrows in his brow, deeper creases in his cheeks, fresh lines around his eyes and more flesh beneath his chin, all testimony to the incessant demand of White House responsibilities . . ." While this isn't as bad as an article suggesting he has to take uppers to drag himself through the day, it's the type of publicity they hit you with when you're suffering through a nadir.

Nadirs are more likely to occur in non-election years unless the glutty surplus of political reporters can be kept distracted with all-expense paid seminars on emerging trends of the early '80s in Aspen. If allowed to stay in Washington these people will fill their idle hours by commissioning public opinion polls. This means 1,500 not too randomly selected citizens, who haven't given the matter a second thought, will be asked, "Is Jimmy Carter living up to your expectations?" Is your new Chevrolet, is your wife or husband, are your kids, are you living up to your expectations? Nothing is and nothing does.

Armed with this data of unrivaled unreliability, 10,000 people can hop to their keyboards and write, "With his popularity ratings in the polls slipping badly, it's fair to say that President Carter's 11-month-old administration is in trouble." The phrase "in trouble" is portentous because it's so imprecise. In fact, the trouble that a president is in when floating in the greasy waters of a full-fledged nadir is that he gets picked apart for what he and other presidents are praised for when floating on an apogee.

Thus the complaints over Carter surrounding himself with men and women who, we're given to understand, are provincial Georgia clods. John Kennedy was admired for his Massachusetts Irish Mafia, and there was a time when you could read about how Nixon's bright, young, Southern Californian men were bringing a fresh western je ne sais quoi to your nation's capital. They've got just as much je ne sais quoi in Georgia but, like a lot of good things, you can't see it during a nadir.

Too many ideas?

They're picking on Jimmy for submitting too many ideas to Congress at one time and, as anyone familiar with that institution will tell you, even a single idea can be more than those 535 geniuses can handle.

FDR said, "It is a little bit difficult in our system of government to pursue two equally important things with equal emphasis at the same time. That is darned hard." Yet Roosevelt himself scored some of his most important legislative success when he was throwing a lot of things at Congress at once. At his best, FDR could seem four times larger than life, the personification of the word leadership, because he invited the country to do what it wanted to do anyway. He had the gift not of simply being lucky, but of knowing when he was lucky.

That's called timing, and this isn't a particularly good moment. Carter can't ask the country to do what it wants to do because it doesn't know what it wants to do. The program he got elected on last autumn turned out to be conventional sloganeering. There was no mandate and no way to manufacture one.

But the days will pass, something will suggest itself, or some happy catastrophe will offer Carter an opportunity to seem presidential and the first nadir will be over.

New family deductions

Sylvia Porter

(Fourth of seven columns)

Countless numbers of you are probably unaware that you have just received a big and unexpected family tax bonus — getting back deductions you thought were lost or picking up extra deductions you had not counted on. And it's all due to a new Treasury ruling, reversing a previous position, that capital outlays count as support for dependents. Autos, TV sets, etc., can now help you meet the more-than-half support test needed to claim a dependency deduction.

That's a happy bonanza not only for taxpayers who have children but also for those of you who help support parents or other relatives. Say your son, Robert, is a college student who earned $3,000 in '77 to pay for part of his expenses. Your $2,000 provides the rest of his support and you also buy him a used car for $2,500 as a Christmas gift.

Up to now, you couldn t claim Robert as a dependent, for you provided only 40 percent of his current living expenses. But under the new ruling, your $2,500 Christmas gift counts as support. Along with your $2,000 in cash support, you've contributed more than Robert's $3,000. And while in general a dependent's income must be less than $750, there is no income limit for a child under age 19 or for a full-time student (Robert).

The ruling is not limited to children. If you handle all other tests correctly, it can help you with any dependency claim.

Say your mother lives in your home, receives $3,000 in Social Security, another $2,700 in support from you. You give her a $400 TV set for her own bedroom as a Christmas gift. The TV set counts as support you provide, which plus your $2,700 tops the $3,000 she provides for herself. (Social Security benefits aren't counted as income, so the $750 income limit doesn't enter this situation.)

If you put the set in the family den, though, it becomes an item of family use, not support for your mother. The set doesn't count for dependency purposes and you lose the deduction.

Now say you buy a car, titled and registered in your name, but your son uses it about half the time. No part of the price of the car counts as support. You own it, your son merely uses it. So that's not support.

Instead, if you really want to give him the car, put title and registration of the car in your son's name — if he is to use it most of the time. The car is then a gift to your child and is added to support you provide. Keep your use of your son's car to a minimum, so it's not a family item.

Or say your son wants to buy a $4,000 car next year, and you provide $3,600 to pay for his other expenses. You lose out. Your son is paying for the car entirely out of his own funds, so the full cost of the car is treated as support he provides himself in '78, even if he makes only a small downpayment. You flunk the more-than-half support test, lose a dependency deduction for your son.

If, though, you provide enough toward the purchase of the car to put him over the more-than-half support mark (as little as $210 in this case), you get the dependency deduction. Your son wins too by keeping his personal exemption on his return.

Can this be bad news for you, however, if your child already has bought a car in '77? Does the new ruling eliminate a dependency deduction you were expecting to get this year?

No, there's a big break here.

If the new rule affects you adversely, because you're not providing the capital item, it does not apply to your '77 return. If the ruling affects you favorably, it does supply to '77. It's a heads-you-win, tails-you-win deal for '77 — and this break can set up other special year-end strategies.

For instance, say your dependent daughter is planning to buy a car soon out of her own funds. Tell her to buy before Dec. 31. Her purchase won't affect your deduction under the tax relief rule, for the car's cost won't count against you.

Or, says Prentice-Hall, say you're planning to buy a car for your retired father who has provided some of his own support in '77 with SS benefits. If you buy the car before Dec. 31 you may lock in a dependency deduction for him. The capital outlay counts as support you provide since it works in your favor.

FEUD BETWEEN ARTHUR BURNS AND CARTER? — The Federal Reserve Board was created by Congress to be independent of the President, and if its chairman were subservient to the White House the "Fed" would not be doing its duty under the law.

There are differences in degree of emphasis between the President and Chairman Burns. Mr. Carter puts a somewhat higher priority on stimulating the economy and Burns places a higher priority on holding down inflation. Controlling the money supply has a bearing on both. There is far more agreement than disagreement between them.

Mr. Burns' term of office runs out in January. Will he be reappointed? A strong case can be made that the President's basic objectives would be well served by keeping Burns right where he is. I doubt if the President has made up his mind, but one thing seems sure: If Carter does not re-appoint Burns, he will choose as successor a man whose views are nearly the same.

HOW FARES THE ERA? — It's touch-and-go whether the supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment can get the necessary ratification in three more states before time runs out two years hence. I hope they do. I have long supported the amendment and I fail to see why there should be any legal or constitutional discrimination between American citizens.

The ERA received a boost recently when Virginia voters defeated one of the amendment's most powerful opponents in the State Legislature. If Virginia votes ratification in the near future it may give the amendment the new momentum it needs.

The tactics being employed by some ERA supporters in seeking congressional extension of the ratification period by several years seems to me ill-advised. It is bad business to change the rules for ratification in the middle of the game. Surely the ERA ought not to be brought into existence differently than other amendments and to do so would cast constitutional doubts on its validity from the start.

GOP PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES GETTING EAGER — The fact that the number of voters who call themselves Republicans is at an all-time low is not keeping potential 1980 Republican presidential nominees from sniffing the political winds. The number of "I-might-runs" now includes Sen. Howard Baker, George Bush, John Connally, Sen. Robert Dole, former President Ford and Ronald Reagan. There wil be more starters before long.

Many Republicans hope that Reagan and Ford do not get into another divisive preliminary. At present such a contest seems inescapable. My information is that Ford does not relish running again but will almost certainly be induced to do so if Reagan makes another try.

Maverick senator unlikely hero of state budget battle

By STEPHEN E. DRACHLER
Ottaway News Service
Harrisburg Bureau

Harrisburg highlights

HARRISBURG — Tom Nolan did it again.

Nolan, the crusty Allegheny County Democrat who some say was responsible for Pennsylvania's budget crisis, turned the tables Thursday, playing what will be seen as the hero's role in the Senate's passage of a tax package.

Nolan, who resigned his majority leader's post in July because he said he could not vote to raise taxes, reversed form and designed the compromise that broke the two-month Senate impasse. It will increase personal and corporate income taxes.

As last week began, it seemed highly unlikely Nolan would be the one to break the budget deadlock. After all, he had:

— Resigned as majority leader because of his opposition to the wishes of many of his caucus.

— Led a splinter group of five Democrats who voted against the $5.1 billion state budget.

— Was singled out in a stinging attack by Gov. Milton J. Shapp, who called the 61-year-old former union leader an "obstructionist."

— Tried unsuccessfully to cut the budget passed Oct. 19, in order to provide $300 million for state aided institutions and colleges.

If it appears contradictory, at least inconsistent, that Nolan would be the person to offer his vote for taxes to break the deadlock, don't even stop to ponder. Consistency is not one of the requirements of being a state senator. For if there is one thing Nolan is consistent with, that is his inconsistency.

For example, he tried to have the Senate pass a plan that would gradually raise the personal income tax to three percent by 1981. This, he contends, would provide property tax relief for senior citizens.

But then Nolan abandoned that position, after it garnered just one vote — his — when brought up on the Senate floor.

He then devised the package which passed narrowly Thursday night, with two parts of the plan remaining, but expected to now pass with relative ease this week.

After Nolan introduced his plan, to raise personal and corporate income taxes, slap an export tax on electricity and natural gas shipped outside of Pennsylvania and to cut $82 million from the budget, eyebrows raised all over the Capitol.

Some legislators couldn't believe it. To others, it was a typical Tom Nolan move, keeping everyone guessing. Nolan, many thought, would come out of the tax controversy a hero, for both solving it and trying for months to avoid a tax increase. A ready made platform for reelection next year.

What does Nolan think about it?

"I don't see where this (his switch in positions) is a contradiction," Nolan told reporters. "We've just been spinning our wheels. We're at the point where somebody has to be responsible."

Nolan quickly pointed out that the vote was, to him, a victory, because the tax increases are much less than the original plans the legislature was to consider.

In June, for instance, the increase in personal income tax was pegged at 2.5 percent. By cutting it to 2.1 percent, Nolan feels he has won a victory.

"I've carried the fight as far as I can carry it," he said.

Now the fight goes into the House of Representatives.

It took seven votes, a fist fight, demonstrations, all-night sessions and the vote of a hospitalized legislator for the House to pass the budget in August.

What will happen in the House this time is anybody's guess. It's pretty certain the tax package will require at least two votes.

The house though, doesn't have a Tom Nolan flitting around.

Maybe one will come out of the woodwork to work his magic on the legislative process.

THANKS AGAIN!

Scientific slice from local life

By ALAN GOULD Jr.

Saturday's Record enclosed a sample of the results of a readership survey we completed this year. We are generally proud of the statistics and rather than hug them modestly to our breast, we wanted to let our little world of readers in on the news.

To refresh, we went to lots of trouble and expense to get honest and impartial answers from a valid cross-section of Monroe County residents. Our goal was not really to find out how good and valuable we are, but to get a judgment on our role and learn what we could do better.

We came up with some bragging statistics and some that are humbling.

As you may have noticed Saturday, one of our proud points was discovering that of the 86 percent of the people who read a daily newspaper regularly, over 90 percent read The Record.

One of the most humbling that somehow sticks in my mind is that only 39.1 percent admit they are apt to read this column. Ann Landers almost doubles that and even the Horoscope attracts 59.1.

Another result which we considered negative came from the question: "How much of the interesting local news do you feel you get from The Record?" The answer was "too little" from 40.6 percent. As we hope you noticed, this got us into establishing more daily space for local news and led to hiring an additional news person with still another scheduled to be added early next year.

Beyond what we learned about ourselves, the survey also told us things about you. At the conclusions of the interviews the respondents were asked some semi-personal questions to provide the demographics. When the computer at Syracuse University put things together, these insights enabled us to judge whether we were doing best (or worst) with the older folks, young folks, rich or poor, natives or newcomers, men or women etc.

As a side effect of the survey, since this was taken to obtain opinions from a true cross-section of the population, we can produce some generalities on the county's adults.

The composite adult "person" in the county is around 50 years old, has no education beyond high school, has an income of around $13,000, has lived here 20 or more years, is married and is slightly more female than male.

The chances are also 50-50 that the Monroe resident is not in the work force because 50.4 percent of those interviewed listed either homemaker (29.9 percent) or retired (20.5 percent) as their occupation.

Considering the obvious acceleration of our population in the last decade, it is a little surprising to discover that 71.3 percent have lived here 10 years or more (26 percent 20 years and 34 percent all their lives).

The amount of education completed may surprise those who think in terms of the last few decades. Those who completed college account for 14 percent but those with less than eighth grade schooling are 12.7 percent and 29.1, almost one-third, didn't complete high school. On the other hand, 28.4 have at least some college.

The family income is difficult to average. This is the table of replies:

Under $5,000	13%
$5,000-$10,000	26
$10,000-$15,000	21
$15,000-$25,000	21
Over $25,000	5
Decline to answer	14

As the survey began one aim was to get a 50-50 split in male-female responses but last-report options given the interviewers resulted in 55 percent of the answers coming from the gals. This can indicate that women are home and available, still, more than men; or simply that there are more of them — period.

In any case, longtime residents, folks in upper middle age and women carried the most weight in the survey. Sounds like an average slice of local life.

WHY ALUMINUM REPLACEMENT WINDOWS?
SIMPLE. Look at most high rise buildings and you'll see Aluminum Windows, not vinyl. Why? Aluminum can take structural stress, the year 'round exposure with no ill effects. Aluminum windows won't warp or sag, (that means less air leakage). Aluminum windows with baked on enamel finish won't crack or discolor. Vinyl Windows? The value of vinyl is in its resiliency. Once exposure to weather takes its toll, vinyl windows can lose that resiliency and become brittle and possibly crack. The beautiful sheen associated with new vinyl windows can also disappear and the vinyl can become chalky in appearance.

Dieters' misuse of liquid protein real cause of problems

By BILL HENDRICKSON
Wall Street Journal-ONS

NEW YORK — Partly obscured by publicity about the potential dangers of liquid protein diets is underlying evidence that the diets are highly effective in treating obesity, which afflicts 45 million Americans.

The dangers involved have come to the fore in recent days with the Food and Drug Administration's announcement that the liquid-protein diet may have contributed to the deaths of at least 10 people. The FDA is planning a mandatory warning label cautioning users against using the liquid protein for "weight reduction or maintenance without medical supervision."

But difficulties with liquid protein generally have involved dietary deficiencies in people ingesting nothing but liquid protein without supervision, rather than any problems with the liquid itself, which is actually just animal protein partly broken down into amino acids.

A report on a six-year outpatient program at Cleveland's Mt. Sinai Hospital, published in the current issue of the Journal of the AMA, concludes that "Supplemental fasting is now recognized as an effective means of achieving substantial weight loss rapidly and safely with a minimum of patient discomfort."

According to Mr. Victor Vertes, a co-author of the study, the Cleveland program has so far treated 1,500 patients who were at least 50 pounds overweight, including 360 who are currently enrolled. The patients basically are fed several ounces daily of a liquid that includes protein, sucrose, vitamins and minerals.

Of those who completed the "supplemented fasting," Dr. Vertes says, 30 percent lost 40 pounds or more, and one patient shed 321 pounds. Four of the 1,500 patients have died, including one accidental death. Dr. Vertes says the other three victims had symptoms of heart disease — a common hazard among the obese — before they entered the program.

Dr. Vertes calls supplemented fasting "a major breakthrough in treating obesity," although he cautions that the patient must modify his life style and eating habits to maintain the weight loss. He and his colleagues at the Cleveland hospital are exploring approaches to the weight-maintenance problems, including "behavior, modification procedures, group therapy and intermittent supplemented fasting."

Whereas the Cleveland doctors have been using the supplemented fasting technique since 1971, the liquid-protein fad caught on just last year with the publication of "The Last Chance Diet" by Dr. Robert Linn, which has sold 2.5 million copies. The fad led to a $40 million market in sales of some 100 brands of syrupy, fruit-flavored protein drinks.

The popularity of the liquid-protein and similar diets results largely from the dramatic weight loss that is possible with the intake of only 400 or so calories a day — often giving the patient the incentive to continue on the diet. A total fast can drain the body of vital protein and vitamins, but ideally, the supplemented fast provides the essentials while encouraging the body to burn primarily body fat for energy.

"This isn't a magic elixir, however," says Dr. George Blackburn, associate professor at Harvard Medical School and a pioneer in the protein-supplement diet. His studies, involving a diet of about 12 ounces of solid protein a day (lean meat, fish or fowl) plus other supplements, were published jointly with Dr. Peter Lindner, South Gate, Calif., who is president of the American Society of Bariatric (weight control) Physicians and who administers liquid protein.

The joint studies showed that of 167 patients treated, 50 percent maintained a weight loss of 40 pounds or more 2½ to three years later. "We consider this very significant," Dr. Blackburn says, because in other dietary programs the weight loss usually proves temporary.

Still, a full 50 percent of those studied failed to maintain their weight loss.

One subscriber to the Linn program, for example, was Lyle Stuart, publisher of "The Last Chance Diet." In a foreword in the original edition, Stuart, who lost 83 pounds in the "liquid protein" diet, enthusiastically endorsed Dr. Linn's method.

More than tradition, recipes to 'local' cookbook

By BOBBY WESTBROOK

STROUDSBURG — Far from being chained to their cookstoves, Millie Larsen and Candy Coleman have combined their recipes with suggested trips to historical places within two hours drive (more or less) of the Poconos in their attractive cookbook, "Cooking with a Dash — of History" now available in local stores.

While the title might indicate that the recipes would be replete with traditional dishes connected with local history, there's a lot more to the book than that.

There are some obvious connections, of course, like the Christmas dinner menu accompanying the trip to Historic Bethlehem, the Christmas City, and the recipe for Moravian Sugar Cake in conjunction with the history of the Old Sun Inn, there are other more imaginative jumps.

In fact one of the pleasures of reading the book — and it is a pleasure to read as well as to use — is trying to anticipate the imaginative leaps in linking disparate places and recipes.

The pre-ice age Poconos under the sea might logically suggest a recipe for Red Snapper with Sauce Roquevort, but the berries and nuts grown in the valley is the frail link between the story of the Lenni-Lenape Indians and the menu of walnut dressed baked lamb shanks.

It's not so hard to equate the five oxen barbecued to celebrate Sullivan's successful Indian reprisal raid and the recipe for Texas barbecue sauce and baked stuffed potatoes, or Joy Gould's recruiting his personal "army" to resist process servers by serving barrels of oysters and plenty of whisky for the "Battle of Gouldsboro" with a recipe for oyster and turkey.

There is also a connection between the Anton Dutot School Museum in Delaware Water Gap and suggestions for after-school snacks, and between the historic Shawnee Presbyterian Church and a menu for a Sunday brunch.

The elegance of Dorflinger Glass might bring to mind the luxury of a crown roast of lamb, but the Devil's Hole and an Oriental dish? However, as the authors point out, it wouldn't be practical to suggest a barbecued elk with which Carl Tielenious once stocked his Devil's Hole property, but the pagoda which he built as a game room down by the Devil's Hole Stream still remains and was the inspiration for their recipe for Stir Fry Beef A la Schriber.

Despite the fact — or perhaps because of it — that neither both Millie Larsen and Candy Coleman are natives of the Poconos, they have included suggestions for many interesting places to visit and bits of history often overlooked by long-term residents.

One example is the home of author Zane Grey in Lackawaxen.

Their travels are not limited to the Monroe County area but stretch out to include Pike and Wayne Counties where the Roeblin Bridge and the Stourbridge Lion are ports of call, into Luzerne and Lackawanna Counties where French Azilum and the Brooks Coal Mine and Everhart Museum are listed among the points of interest.

Jim Thorpe country, Allentown's Liberty Bell Shrine, historic Bethlehem and Easton's canal sites are included along with points of interest as far away as Harrisburg, Gettysburg, Philadelphia and New York.

While the historical information and landmarks provide inspiration for family outings and bridge club trips, a cook book also needs recipes and there are plenty of both included in the well-indexed attractive book with its spiral-type binding which permits it to lie conveniently flat for use in the kitchen. There are more than 125 historical notes and almost 300 recipes.

The book is the outgrowth of the adventures of the authors who were drawn together by their common interest in cooking and entertaining.

Candy Coleman had already authored a cookbook, "Steamboat Simmers," and came to the Poconos from Dallas, Texas. She is the wife of William R. Coleman and they have four children and two grandchildren. Millie Larsen is the wife of John Larsen and they have two children. Originally from Florida, she is a certified teacher.

Both are familiar to local people, not only their personal friends, but also through their cooking school, "In the Kitchen," through their televised series, and their weekly recipes in The Pocono Record.

Personalities emerge

The recipes in the book reflect their personalities and interests and should appeal to like-minded people — and may even inspire less adventurous cooks who may never have thought to make Gin and Caper Dressing for shrimp or as a dip or to add a red caviar Christmas ring.

It is not a basic cookbook but slanted toward the unusual, but it does contain some practical recipes for women whose husbands are successful as hunters or fishermen not contained in most cookbooks. There are recipes, for instance, for a sauce for game for roasted venison loin, for venison steaks, medallions and even venison meat loaf.

It is also a book for entertaining when you want something unusual and has the added convenience of grouping meats and salads or vegetables which go with them, especially helpful to those cooks whose imagination doesn't go beyond serving peas with lamb and cabbage with pork.

The reader soon learns to look for the drawing of the pineapple, traditional English symbol of hospitality, for hints like: Boil a pan of water containing cloves and cinnamon sticks just before guests arrive — house will smell heavenly."

In fact, the attractive illustrations by Michelle Lanoir and Reggi Henning scattered throughout the book add to its enjoyment.

To reinforce my own opinion of the value of the book and its selection of recipes, I shared it with a number of women whose culinary skill I respect. They were enthusiastic — and, as a final test, each of them found recipes they wanted to copy before giving the book back.

I had from them only minor criticisms. One was a minor one: that the brown type on cream colored dappled paper attractive though it is, might be hard to read for the bi-focal set. Another was that to follow all the recipes exactly, a cook would need an exceptionally well-stocked wines and liquer cabinet. Only one, from a young housewife, concerned the price — along with a not-too-subtle hint that she'd love it as a Christmas present.

Now that was a suggestion which just might solve a number of my Christmas list problems — and perhaps yours.

Energy shortages unlikely this winter, unless . . .

NEW YORK (UPI) — The oil, natural gas and coal industries and the electric utilities all are confident we will get through this winter without suffering shortages.

But there are a lot of "ifs" involved.

The national weather bureau is predicting a cold winter: colder than usual but not as severe as last winter, when heating oil and natural gas shortages plagued many parts of the country.

The "ifs" include the severity of the winter, developments in Washington on President Carter's energy bill, the possibility of a coal strike and, from the cost point of view, a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in December.

C.R. Turvey, executive vice president, worldwide marketing, Continental Oil Co., said, "We are entering the 1977-78 winter heating oil season with distillate stocks nearly 10 percent higher than at this time last year.

"With this inventory position and assuming a normal winter, an import level of about 300,000 barrels a day is all that will be required to provide adequate distillate supplies.

"This level of distillate imports will not be difficult to realize provided Europe does not have extremely cold weather."

The American Petroleum Institute said inventories of distillate, most of which is used for home heating, stood at a record 260.5 million barrels on Nov. 4. The figure was 5 million barrels up on the previous week and 29 million barrels more than the 231.4 million barrels stockpiled in the same week last year.

Production was running at 3.3 million barrels a day, compared with 3.1 million barrels a day at this time last year.

API said this put the industry in a good position to face even a colder than normal winter, although it warned spot problems could arise again if the weather were as harsh as last year's cold.

Alton W. Whitehouse, vice chairman of Standard Oil (Ohio), said a lengthy coal strike would create problems, particularly because many industries would switch to oil and thus wipe out the stockpile advantage we have over last winter.

Negotiations for a new coal mining contract are currently reported deadlocked and a strike deadline is only three weeks away.

Whitehouse said the problem most likely to develop this winter would be in distribution of heating oil and gasoline.

"Last winter stretched the delivery capability of workers and equipment to the maximum," he said. Frozen rivers and highways last winter created difficulties for fuel trucks and barges.

The Edison Electric Institute, the electric utility industry association, said it did not anticipate any major supply problems as long as there was not an extended coal strike.

In its annual power survey, the Institute said 1977-78 capability was forecast at 547.1 million kilowatts nationally, 7.1 percent (37.1 million kw) up from last winter's 511 million kilowatts.

David H. Foster, executive vice president of the Natural Gas Supply Committee, said, "We have a lot of things going for us that we didn't have last year. The suppliers, the pipelines and industry are all better prepared than they were for last winter.

"Supplies are down, but not significantly. Many companies have switched to other energy sources, but we don't know how many and it's difficult to make firm predictions.

"A lot will depend on the weather. Not just on the severity, but also the duration. Last winter was bad because the cold weather just went on day after day without respite. The suppliers need an occasional warmer day to bring their stocks back up to normal."

Maurice F. Granville, chairman of Texaco Inc., said the oil industry overall was confident.

"We are probably in as good a shape as we can be," he said. "The assessment is, unless we have a very severe winter, they don't expect any difficulties of special magnitude."

Manaos Indians subject of film

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — A Brazilian movie director has made a film about the 18th century Manaos Indian rebellion starring a direct descendent of the tribe.

The film, "Ajuricaba, the Rebel of the Amazon," describes a Manaos Indian's efforts to drive white colonists from the Manaos tribal lands in Amazonas, the vast jungle region whose rainfall feeds the Amazon river. Rinaldo Genes, a descendent of the Manaos tribe, plays the role of Ajuricaba in the film, directed by Oswaldo Caldeira.

HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN SOMETHING????

Says Chris Darrell

Here it is almost Thanksgiving and, yes, you have the turkey, the dressing, even the pumpkin pie, but you've forgotten a most important part of your special plans . . . . your "It's Unreal" Thanksgiving centerpiece. You need a beautiful dried flower fall arrangement, perhaps one of the special turkey ceramics filled with unusual dried flowers in all the brilliant fall colors, a door piece decorated for the season, brooms with red and brown ribbons, orange and yellow colored leaves as well as an assortment of fall drieds. Fall centerpieces with candles, just perfect for your table, helping you with the festive mood of your Thanksgiving dinner.

Now, just to make sure your Thanksgiving is perfect, why not add some It's Unreal candles, large orange and yellow candles on the cocktail table, green and sandlewood tapers on the fireplace and the buffet, and just for accents and "fun", scented candles small enough to fit anywhere and in any color you want — and every scent you might want as well.

You say you now have everything set for Thanksgiving? One more thing, It's Unreal suggests (and so so I), a few small scarecrow figurines or a pilgrim doll as gifts for your guests or even to hold the place cards at your large dining room table.

Now, I think you really are ready for Thursday and it was all made easy because of It's Unreal.

They're open right now. Get in your car and head for Canadensis, Rte. 390 (Skytop Road).

Financial aid available for post-secondary students

BRODHEADSVILLE — Any student who says the only reason he or she is not going to college is that it is too expensive is "copping out," a Penn State official recently told a group of Pleasant Valley School District residents.

Dr. Joseph McCallous, dean of student affairs at the Hazleton Campus of Penn State University, said the amount of financial aid available to students in Pennsylvania is "unbelievable."

He made the comments at a seminar on securing financial aid sponsored by Pleasant Valley High School guidance counselor Gerald Miller. Approximately 60 students and parents attended the session, which included a panel of four individuals familiar with various aspects of aid programs available in and out of the state.

According to the panel members, it is not difficult to apply for financial aid but many people confuse the many different types of assistance.

Some of the types of aid available to Pennsylvanians include guaranteed loans with varying interest rates, grants, and scholarships.

Two officials of the Security Bank and Trust explained the state guaranteed loan programs. They said in order to qualify for guaranteed loans, a student's parent's income, after a series of deductions for such things as dependents, must fill out an application that is then submitted to the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA). If the state approves the loan, students can receive up to $2,500 per year at seven percent interest.

According to Mrs. Donna Houser, student loan officer at the bank's Brodheadsville branch, if the parents of the students have a total adjusted income of less than $25,000, the federal government will pay the interest on the loan.

Although the adjusted income cutoff line is $25,000, she suggested that anyone with an income as high as $35,000 should apply because deductions that are allowed could bring the adjusted income into the eligible bracket.

Mrs. Houser stressed the student does not have to make any payments on the loan as long as he is attending school. Nine months after leaving school, a repayment schedule, which can stretch over as long as 10 years, is set up.

She added some students have defaulted on repayment but said that "both the banks and the state government are getting a lot stricter about defaults. If we (the bank) can't get paid, the state now takes strong action to get the money."

She added the student alone, and not the parents, sign for the loan. The parents cannot be held responsible if the student later defaults.

In addition to the loans, PHEAA has a grant program that this year will distribute $95 million to Pennsylvanians for attendance at colleges, universities and a wide range of vocational and trade schools.

Joseph Haggerty, division director for PHEAA, said the average grant under the program last year was $681 and the average family income of the recipients was $13,400. The grants, money that is given without obligation of payment, can be as much as $1,500 if the student decides to go to school in the state.

Haggerty said Pennsylvania is one of the only seven states in the nation that allows students to use state grants at out-of-state schools.

He said that application for a PHEAA grant is simple and "takes about a half-hour to complete." He said any student who took a college board examination will automatically receive an application through the mail sometime around Dec. 1. If a student does not receive one, they are available at all high schools and libraries in the area.

Haggerty said as with the loan program, it would be foolish to assume that the family's total income is too high and not apply.

"It only costs you a 13-cent stamp and a few minutes and you might be pleasantly surprised," he said.

Haggerty went on to say that there is also a federal grant program called Basic Education Opportunity Grant (BEOG).

In the past, parents would have to fill out a separate application for the BEOG. This year, however, the state is processing those applications for the federal government and has combined the two forms.

He added the fact that a student gets either a federal or state grant will have "absolutely no bearing" on whether a student can receive a state guaranteed loan.

Finally, Penn State's McCallous explained most school financial aid offices will work with students in need to prepare a financial aid package.

He said at most schools, all a student has to do to apply for this package, which varies from student to student, is fill out a Financial Aid Form (FAF) and send it to the College Testing Service in Princeton, N. J., the same company that administers the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Triplets earn Eagle awards

SAYLORSBURG — Good luck and hard work came in threes Sunday as the 17-year-old triplet sons of Mr. and Mrs. David Singer of Bossardsville received their Eagle Scout badges — the highest award offered by the Boy Scouts.

The brothers — Brett, Brian and Bruce Singer — are probably the first triplet Boy Scouts in Pennsylvania to simultaneously be awarded the Eagle Scout pin.

"We're pretty sure they're the first in the state," said Charles Jenkenson, scoutmaster of Hamilton Township Troop 93. "Nobody's been able to prove they're not."

The three brothers are all seniors at Stroudsburg High School. Brett, who has 21 merit badges, restored the original shutters of the Hamilton Square Church parsonage as his Eagle Scout project. Brian, who has 17 merit badges, and Bruce, who has 24, both cleaned and restored the Hamilton Square Cemetery.

All three youths have been involved in scouting since seventh grade. The triplets have four other brothers and three sisters.

Man on trial again

ALLENTOWN — The Allentown man who pleaded guilty in Monroe County Court last month to stabbing a Blakeslee woman is now on trial in Allentown on a murder charge.

Peter W. Rossetti, 22, is on trial for murder in the July 17 stabbing death of Carol Ann Crone, 31, of Allentown. Rossetti has pleaded guilty to the July 25 stabbing of Frances Kopetz, 62, in her Blakeslee home. Mrs. Kopetz has recovered from her wounds.

Tobyhanna Township police, whose questioning of Rossetti led to his arrest on the Allentown murder charge, are key witnesses in the murder trial.

Tobyhanna Ptl. Tom Smith testified that Rossetti told him "I wrote Charles Manson's name, helter skelter, Sam 44 and I sold my soul to the devil," in reference to a note found pinned to the Allentown victim's body.

Smith and Tobyhanna Police Chief Robert Reed questioned Rossetti upon his arrest shortly after the Blakeslee stabbing.

Rossetti's murder trial began Thursday. Lehigh County Dist. Atty. William Platt rested his case Saturday.

Your opinions on abortion

The U.S. House of Representatives and Senate have been deadlocked for months over when, if at all, the federal government should provide funds for abortions.

We asked area residents and visitors whether or not they feel funding abortions for the poor is a proper use of taxpayer dollars.

Connie Judge

Connie Judge, ESSC: "Personally, I've always been against abortions, but I've seen cases where there is good reason for the government to provide the funds for them. I'd say that anyone could make a mistake once, but after that they should know about Planned Parenthood and a second one shouldn't be funded."

Neil Brodt

Neil Brodt, Portland: "I think it depends on the reason for the abortion. If the life of the mother is in danger and she can't afford an abortion, then I'd say it's all right. If it's just because they can't afford to raise the child, then I'd say no."

Mike Habick

Mike Habick, New York, N.Y.: I think federally funded abortions are a good idea. I don't think you should be forced to have a child just because you had the urge at the wrong time. Abortions should be something that each woman can make a choice about."

Mabel Younkin

Mrs. Mabel Younkin, Stroudsburg: "I don't favor that. I'm against all abortions. After all, you know that's going to be a human life. It's wrong to spend taxpayers money on that when it could be spent helping senior citizens or for some other worthwhile cause."

Helen Stanton

Helen Stanton, Stroudsburg: "I feel it's a good idea. With some of the atrocities you hear happening to children, some of them would be better off if they were never born. Besides, people will get the abortions anyway and if the government doesn't fund them, many will be hurt."

Alan Davis

Alan Davis, East Stroudsburg: "If they can't afford it, then I think the government should pay for it. Otherwise, only the rich people will be able to afford abortions and that's not fair. If the government doesn't pay for it, people will just go to quacks to have abortions and people will really get hurt."

Frank Schadler

Frank Schadler, Sciota: "I feel the federal government should stay out of everyone's business. If someone wants an abortion and can afford it that's one thing, but the government shouldn't pay for it. It will just make those people more promiscuous."

Casey presents credentials for governor

By STEVE BLAKELY
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — If there's one clear issue in the race for governor, it's the unpopularity of the governor now in office — Milton J. Shapp. Republicans are hammering him hard, and so are some Democrats.

"Every Democratic official I've talked to is running away from Shapp at a million miles an hour," said Robert P. Casey, Pennsylvania's former auditor general and one of the strongest Democrats in the crowded contest for governor.

"The leadership in the Shapp Administration has failed, essentially. It's a question of providing new leadership. I think it's an entirely appropriate issue for both Democrats and Republicans."

Casey made his comments during an interview with The Record Saturday evening, prior to his appearance at the Central Labor Union banquet in Stroudsburg. Although he won't officially throw his hat into the ring until early next year, he is already collecting money for the campaign and acting very much like a candidate.

In the Democratic primary next year, Casey faces probable competition from Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline. Other possible candidates include Pete Flaherty, the former mayor of Pittsburgh, and state Sen. Franklin Kury.

As auditor general for eight years, Casey proved his independence from Shapp by repeatedly (and publicly) criticizing how the governor chose to spend state monies. Casey feels his reputation as an independent Democrat gives him the edge over the lieutenant governor.

"Kline's greatest liability is Gov. Shapp — there's absolutely no question about it. It's not possible for the second man to make a separate identity for himself," Casey said. "I've never had any connection with Shapp directly or indirectly. I've been my own man. That's something Kline can't say."

Casey is 45 now, lives in Scranton, and has been "practicing law, working for a living and travelling quite a bit" since leaving state government 11 months ago. He sees his greatest achievement as having sharpened the teeth of the state's office of "fiscal watchdog."

"I took what had been a political patronage mill and turned it into a professional operation which saved tens of millions of dollars," Casey said of his two terms as auditor general.

Those attributes and the Casey name have proven to have strong voter appeal. In the 1976 election, a Robert E. Casey — following a barroom bet — was elected state treasurer on nothing but the strength of Robert P. Casey's name and reputation.

Casey said he thinks future budget crises can be avoided by "telling people the truth" and making state government live within its income.

Local Jewish leaders praise Sadat visit

By JIM WOLFFE
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Outright elation to cautious optimism seems to be the range of reaction among Monroe County Jewish leaders to the weekend trip of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to Israel.

"Who knows, maybe 13 years from now I'll conduct a barmitzvah for someone named Anwar Ginzburg. I must say that I really respect Sadat for the courage it took to make this trip," said Steven Westman, rabbi of Temple Israel, Stroudsburg.

Over the weekend, the Egyptian President became the first Arab leader ever to visit Israel. He also made a speech Sunday before the Israeli parliament, the Knesset.

Three area Jewish leaders contacted Sunday said that the unprecedented trip was cause for hope that lasting peace might at last be coming to the Middle East. They differed, however, concerning how much praise Sadat deserves for making the move.

"It should have happened 30 years ago. I guess this is no time for carping and this is certainly a good thing. It's just amazing that it didn't happen sooner," said Herb Rosen, chairman of the local United Jewish Appeal, a fund raising roup.

Rosen said that the Israelis have been asking all the Arab nations to "sit down and talk" for years and said that ultimately the value of the trip will have to be judged by "what comes out of it" in terms of movement toward a formal peace settlement.

Rosen said it also worries him that this move is such a personal one. He said he wonders whether whatever momentum for peace that has built up would evaporate if something were to happen to Sadat.

Rabbi Westman was more optimistic. "This is the greatest thing that I can remember. I think this is even more momentous than the Nixon trip to China. You have to relize that the Israelis and Arabs have been at odds literally for centuries."

He said the trip takes on even more importance when the fact that Sadat represents the strongest military force in the Arab world is considered.

Rabbi Westman added he does not feel the negotiations that led to Sadat's visit would have been possible if Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin, generally considered a hawk, had not been elected in an upset last spring.

He likened the situation to that of Nixon going to China. "No one was going to accuse Richard Nixon of being a Communist because he went to China and Jews weren't going to fear Begin inviting an Arab to Israel," he said.

Jack Bernbaum, chairman of the Pocono area Israel bond drive, agreed with the rabbi that Sadat "really went out on the limb" in making the trip, which has been harshly criticized by other Arab leaders.

His praise, however, did not go as far as Rabbi Westman's. "Unfortunately, he still insisted that there can't be any negotiating," he said.

"Before there's a real peace, both sides are going to have to give and bend," he stated.

He added the real progress toward peace that comes from the weekend's happenings will not be known until today or tomorrow when Begin and Sadat reveal what has been said in private talks the two have held.

Both Bernbaum and Rabbi Westman said they feel Sadat's trip, and particularly his speech to the Knesset, amount to recognition of Israel, something no Arab nation has ever granted the Jewish state.

"Someone in the Arab world has finally recognized that Israel is here to stay and recognized that the Jewish people have, and are rightfully due, a homeland," Bernbaum said.

Rabbi Westman agreed and added he does not fear the current criticism from other Arabs is a threat to Israel. "Israel won't let its guard down because of this," he predicted.

The rabbi added it is not only Jews who have found reason for hope in the Sadat move. He reported at his service Saturday a non-Jew came up to him and said if a meeting between Sadat and the Israelis could be arranged there might even be hope for peace between the Catholics and Protestants in Northern Ireland.

Rabbi Westman said for him, the two most moving moments of the weekend were when Sadat stepped off the plane and when he kissed former Prime Minister Golda Meir.

He also praised both Sadat and Begin for the "poetry and conciliatory nature" of their speeches to the parliament. "It really sounded like they want to let bygones be bygones and start with a clean slate," he said smiling.

Ski areas make ready for another season

By SHERRIE SPANGLER
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Well, ski buffs, it's time to start doing leg exercises to get in shape for the first run of the season.

The large Pocono ski resorts hope to open in the first week of December, which is less than two weeks away. All they are waiting for is a few days and nights of temperatures below 32 degrees so they can rev up their snow guns and start to artificially blanket the slopes with snow.

Last winter, consistently cold, dry weather provided ideal conditions for artificial snow making and produced the best ski season ever recorded in the Poconos. While the National Weather Service has said it is unlikely we will see a repeat of last winter's skiers' weather, it has predicted this winter will be a little colder than normal.

One thing that will remain the same as last season is the price of ski lift tickets at the Poconos' 13 major ski areas.

Changes will include the addition of a new ski area called Saw Creek in Bushkill, with four slopes and trails, a rental shop, lessons, snack bar and ski patrol. There will also be new double chairlifts at Camelback and Mount Airy Lodge ski areas.

For those who don't know the first thing about skiing but who are thinking about plunging into the downhill sport this year, ski area personnel say the cheapest way to learn is usually through package ski deals.

The packages combine the price of ski equipment rentals, lift tickets, lessons and sometimes even lunch. The Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau in Stroudsburg, 421-5791, has information about packages and other rates at the 13 ski areas.

Chris Serano, an employee of Big Boulder ski area in Lake Harmony, which is under the same management as Jack Frost in White Haven, said the best time to learn to ski at Big Boulder and Jack Frost is on a weekday. It is not as crowded then as on weekends, and the rates are lower, she said.

For example, she said a lift ticket costs $8 during the week and $10 on weekends, and rentals are $7 during the week and $8 on weekends.

Camelback Ski Area in Tannersville offers a multitude of ski packages, including one for $20 for adults that covers two 1½-hour lessons, rentals and a beginner lift ticket.

Camelback, Big Boulder and Jack Frost also have special ski classes for children that turn learning into a game instead of a regimented program.

Camelback's program begins with children ages three to nine visiting Camel Land, a gentle slope with large figures such as Donald Duck, a cowboy, camel and rocket ship that are used during classes.

"The children think they're playing, but they're really learning to ski," said Camelback ski school director Marilyn Hertz. Cost is $5 for a 1½-hour Camel Land lesson.

Jack Frost and Big Boulder have playgrounds with large wooden and metal characters that kids can play with while they learn to ski. For $7, children can ski part of the day at Jack Frost or Big Boulder and spend the rest of the day playing in supervised babysitting areas. (The $7 does not include rentals.)

Now the bad part. Last fall, Pocono Hospital in East Stroudsburg stocked its new emergency room with stacks of crutches in anticipation of ski casualties, and a hospital employee said Sunday, "They'll probably do the same thing this year."

Happy snow trails to you.

Board meets

NAZARETH — The Colonial Northampton Intermediate Unit 20 board of directors will meet 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 30, at the intermediate unit office, 299 Industrial Park Road, Nazareth.

Inspectors find library work faulty

EAST STROUDSBURG — Although the inspection is not complete, an official of the Pennsylvania Department of General Services reported that his preliminary findings indicate the officials of East Stroudsburg State College are correct in saying that part of the foundation of the new library building has defects serious enough to warrant tearing out and repouring part of the concrete work.

William McLaughlin, deputy secretary for public works, DGS, said that his department plans to issue a final decision on precisely what corrective measures will be ordered on the foundation by Wednesday.

He said, however, that the data he has seen so far indicates that some of the concrete work is "pretty unacceptable" and will "obviously" have to be redone.

Officials of the building's general contractor, Ingrassia Construction Co. of Irvington, N.J., said they have no comment concerning the alleged defects.

The General Services Department is responsible for overseeing the construction of the library building because it is on state property.

Inspectors from the department have been on the campus all week collecting information to help determine if the concrete work meets the specifications in the contract.

Hearing tonight

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Borough Council will present its proposed 1978 budget and discuss which of five traffic flow plans to pursue for the borough at a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 22 in council chambers in the municipal building.

Council had originally planned to discuss the traffic plans today after a public hearing. The hearing will still be held at 7:30 p.m. today in council chambers to get citizens' suggestions about how to spend about $65,000 in general revenue sharing funds.

WHICH WAY OUT? — For turkeys, Thanksgiving has never been much fun. These birds at a West End turkey farm line up at the door of their barn, getting ready either for their great escape or last supper. With Thanksgiving only four days away, they'd better think fast, since being a turkey is such a gobble, or gamble. (Staff photo by Steve Blakely)

Police, Fire Calls

Plane crashes at Birchwood

TANNERSVILLE — A Monroe County couple walked away from a plane crash at Pocono-Birchwood Airport Saturday afternoon with only minor injuries, according to Pocono Township police.

Police identified the occupants of the small aircraft as Michael Francis, 50, and his wife Cheryl, 46, of Saylorsburg R.D. 1. Police said Michael Francis was piloting an open cockpit, 1940 Walko biplane when it crashed through trees near the end of the runway at 3:20 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis were taken to Pocono Hospital for treatment of minor injuries and were released, police said, adding the plane was "severely" damaged.

Police said it is still undetermined whether the crash happened just after takeoff or just prior to landing. The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating.

Three hurt in accident

LONG POND — Three persons were injured Saturday afternoon in a two-car, head-on crash on Rte. 115 in Tunkhannock Township.

Admitted to Pocono Hospital were Kathleen Gillette, 18, of West Nanticoke, who was driving one car, and Gillette's passenger, Katie Brace, 20, of Hunlock Creek R.D. 2. Their conditions were not listed Sunday.

The driver of the other car, Kay Campbell, 35, of Rte. 115, Blakeslee, was treated for injuries at the hospital and released.

State police at Fern Ridge said the crash happened at 4:40 p.m. as the Gillette car was making a left-hand turn into a public parking lot from the southbound lane of the highway. The Campbell car, heading north, collided head-on with the Gillette car, police said. Both cars were demolished.

Burglars hit church

STROUDSBURG — Burglars slipped into St. John's Lutheran Church at 9 N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning and stole a tape player and five tapes valued in all at about $100.

Borough police said the burglary happened between 4 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday. A window on an inside door to a conference room was broken to gain access to the tape player, police said.

Hemlock fire doused

HEMLOCK FARMS — Hemlock Farms firemen doused a grass fire Sunday afternoon that was spreading through a large pile of pine needles and leaves on the Lords Valley Country Club golf course near Canoebrook Drive.

Fire Chief Bruce Motts said six men with three trucks fought the fire for two hours until it was quelled at about 3 p.m. Motts said the fire was of suspicious origin.

Blue Ridge called to fire

SAYLORSBURG — Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder firemen doused a car fire Saturday night on Rte. 209 east of Saylorsburg, according to fire chief Ronald Shoemaker.

The fire started in electrical wiring near the engine of the Volkswagen sedan and destroyed the car. The name of the car owner was not immediately available. No one was injured.

Easton man shot

BATH — A Northampton County man was shot and seriously wounded Sunday in the Hickory Hills trailer park north of Bath in Moore Township.

Wounded was Harry Featherman, 35, of Easton. He was listed in guarded condition in the Muhlenberg Medical Center with a gunshot wound of the head.

Bears' Payton breaks loose for 275 yards

CHICAGO (UPI) — Walter Payton set a National Football League single-game rushing record Sunday by carrying 40 times for 275 yards and also scored a touchdown in leading the Chicago Bears to a 10-7 victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

Bob Thomas delivered the actual winning points with a 37-yard field goal with 43 seconds to play in the first half for a 10-0 lead. Thereafter, the attention was on Payton's success than on the score.

At the half, Payton had 144 yards on 26 carries and had run one yard for the Bears' only touchdown. In the third period, he carried eight times for 48 yards and in the final period, six times for 83 yards.

His chance to break the league record of 273 yards set by Buffalo's O.J. Simpson against Detroit last Thanksgiving got its biggest boost on his 38th carry of the game, a 58 yard run to the Minnesota nine, which gave him 268 yards. The Bears couldn't score after a first down on the nine but Payton picked up seven yards on two carries to set the record.

It was Payton's second 200-yard game of the season and the performance boosted his league-leading rushing total to 1,404 yards. Earlier this season, he gained 205 yards against Green Bay to tie the old Bears' single-game rushing record set by Gale Sayers.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Jim Otis scored two touchdowns, including the game winner, with 38 seconds left to play, and Jim Hart passed 69 yards to Mel Gray for a third score as St. Louis scored 21 second half points for a 21-16 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Hart, who had only 27 yards passing in the first half, finished with 13 completions in 27 attempts for 240 yards.

On the final touchdown march, Hart hit four passes for 52 yards, including a 12-yarder to Gray that put St. Louis on the Eagles' 13 with two minutes left. Otis, who had 97 yards in 18 carries, ran a yard for his second score three plays later and St. Louis took the lead for the first time in the game.

Browns, 21-7

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Linebacker Gerald Irons returned an interception 53 yards for a touchdown late in the third quarter and David Mays threw an 18-yard scoring pass to Paul Warfield Sunday to lift the Cleveland Browns to a 21-7 victory over the New York Giants.

With the score tied 7-7, Irons stepped in front of rookie wide receiver Johnny Perkins and snared a pass by Jerry Golsteyn, who earlier had thrown a 15-yard TD pass to rookie Emery Moorehead for the Giants' only score.

Rolly Woolsey's 44-yard punt return set up Mays' fourth-quarter TD pass to Warfield with 10:23 left to play. Mays, subbing for Cleveland's regular starting quarterback Brian Sipe, who is out for the season with a fractured collar bone, completed 13-of-24 for 138 yards in his first NFL start.

Lions, 16-7

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Reggie Pinkney returned an intercepted pass 48 yards for a touchdown with 1:55 to play Sunday to seal the Detroit Lions' 16-7 victory and doom the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to their 24th consecutive loss.

The smallest crowd ever to watch the Lions play in the Silverdome, 49,751, started the game cheering the visitors, who have not won a regular season National Football League game since being formed last season, and vigorously booing the home team, which squared its record at 5-5.

The Lions were nearly as inept as the Bucs offensively without regular quarterback Greg Landry at the controls. Landry sat out the game with a knee strain and was replaced first by Joe Reed and then by Gary Danielson.

Danielson replaced Reed slightly before the end of the first half with Tampa Bay leading 7-0 — the first time the Bucs have scored first in a game this year. He marched the Lions 40 yards to a 47-yard field goal by Steve Mike-Meyer.

An interception by veteran free safety Dick Jauron started Detroit on a 55-yard scoring drive which ended when rookie Rick Kane put his team into the lead for the good with a 1-yard scoring run on the first play of the fourth quarter.

The 21 points scored by the Saints were the most this season against the tenacious Falcons, who dropped to 5-5 and saw their chances for a wild card playoff berth diminished.

The victory gave Los Angeles a 7-3 record and left only Atlanta with a chance in the division race while the 49ers, whose win streak was snapped at four, fell three games back with five to play.

SEATTLE (UPI) — Dan Pastorini passed for 237 yards Sunday and the Houston defense allowed the Seattle Seahawks to complete only five passes all day as the Oilers chalked up a 22-10 victory over the second-year expansion club.

Houston tied the game at 3-3 on Tom Dempsey's 27-yard field goal and went ahead to stay when Pastorini fired a 15-yard touchdown pass to Ken Burrough.

The first Houston touchdown drive began when Billy Johnson returned a punt 30 yards to the Oiler 48. Pastorini moved his team to scoring position with passes of eight and seven yards to running backs Ronnie Coleman and Rob Carpenter and an 11-yard rush by Coleman.

Steelers spoil Dorsett's homecoming

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Franco Harris rushed for a career-high 179 yards and two touchdowns and Terry Bradshaw threw for two more scores Sunday to lead the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 28-13 upset victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

The victory kept the Steelers in a first-place tie in the AFC Central Division with Cleveland while reducing the Cowboys' lead over St. Louis in the NFC East to just one game..

The Steelers' triumph dampened the first pro start and first home town appearance of rookie Cowboy Tony Dorsett since he led the University of Pittsburgh to the 1976 national college championship. Dorsett, greeted with a huge ovation when introduced before the game, rushed for 73 yards and scored the Cowboys' first touchdown on a 13-yard run.

The Steelers' win, coupled with Cleveland's win over the New York Giants, left the two teams tied in the AFC Central Division with 6-4 records. The Cowboys, undefeated the first eight games of the season, lost for the second time in seven days and fell to 8-2.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Rookie quarterback Cliff Olander, playing his first game ever in the NFL, directed two second-half scoring drives capped by field goals of 22 and 46 yards by Rolf Benirschke Sunday to carry the San Diego Chargers to a shocking 12-7 upset of the World Champion Oakland Raiders.

Olander, drafted out of New Mexico State primarily as a punter, was pressed into service against the Raiders after two quarterbacks, James Harris and Bill Munson, suffered leg injuries during last week's game with Denver.

The Raiders played the final three periods of the game without quarterback Ken Stabler, who went down late in the opening quarter with a knee injury. He was replaced by Mike Rae.

Benirschke's second field goal came with just 3:15 left in the game. With two minutes left, Olander picked up a crucial first down on a 7-yard keeper and San Diego ran out the clock to preserve the win.

The game-winning play started when Anderson handed off to running back Archie Griffin, who in turn handed off to wide receiver John McDaniel, who then handed back to Anderson. The quarterback lobbed a pass to Trumpy who was wide open in the end zone.

The wild play climaxed a 69-yard drive that had started with the Bengals' trailing 17-16 after Miami's Garo Yepremian kicked a 35-yard field goal with 10:12 left to play.

Brewers undergo shake-up

By United Press International

The Milwaukee Brewers, baseball's busiest club the past few days, will continue their top-to-bottom shakeup by naming Harry Dalton their new head man in the front office.

Dalton's appointment is all set and is due to be announced at a news conference in Milwaukee today.

Either Big Frank Howard, the Brewers' first-base coach last season, or third baseman Sal Bando, who they signed last year for $1.25 million in the free agent draft, could wind up their new field manager before they finish what amounts to an almost complete overhauling.

Howard, the huge 6-foot-7 one-time home run slugger for the Los Angeles Dodgers and Washington Senators, is a native and resident of Green Bay, Wis., enormously popular throughout the entire state as well as with the Brewers' players. He did well as a manager with Spokane of the Pacific Coast League before joining Milwaukee as a coach last season.

The 33-year old Bando, regarded as the field leader for the the three-time World Champion Oakland A's before coming to the Brewers, signed a contract with them which provides him with deferred salary for the next 20 years. He could become the Brewers' player manager.

As Executive Vice President and General Manager for the next six years, Dalton, 48, will run the whole show when it comes to player operations and will be directly accountable only to club President Allan "Bud" Selig.

Dalton is coming to Milwaukee from the California Angels, with whom he served as vice president and general manager the past six seasons. His hiring constitutes the Brewers' third major move inside a 96-hour period.

They signed former Minnesota outfielder Larry Hisle as a free agent Friday, for close to $3 million and fired Alex Grammas as manager Saturday night. Jim Baumer, general manager, and Al Widmar, who handled player development, also were let go.

By getting Dalton, the Brewers indicate they mean to be taking a much more active role in the signing of free agents than they have been doing up to now.

The 33-year old Bando, regarded as the field leader for the the three-time World Champion Oakland A's before coming to the Brewers, signed a contract with them which provides him with deferred salary for the next 20 years. He could become the Brewers' player manager.

Puzio passes, runs Mounties past Cavs

EAST STROUDSBURG — Luke Puzio passed for two touchdowns and ran for another to lead Stroudsburg to a 20-0 junior varsity football victory over East Stroudsburg Saturday.

Puzio, who connected on four of six passes for 110 yards, threw third quarter touchdown tosses to Royce Fetherman and Joe Pohutsky to power the Mounties to their ninth triumph in ten outings — the best record in the Centennial League.

Puzio added a three-yard run for the Mounties final touchdown in the fourth quarter and accounted for two more points on a conversion run following Stroudsburg's first score.

Bob Angradi was Puzio's favorite target with two catches for 85 yards.

The Mounties earned their sixth shutout of the season and dealt the Cavaliers just their second loss in ten games.

DelVal's Balch named Wayne soccer's MVP

MILFORD — Senior halfback Tim Balch of Delaware Valley has been named the Wayne County Soccer League's Most Valuable Player.

Balch, one of six Warrior players to earn first-team status in the league's annual all-star balloting, received 59 out of a possible 60 votes to add MVP honors to his list of laurels.

Balch set a school record for midfielders this fall when he scored 17 goals and added 11 assists, and was one of the key players who helped the Warriors compile a 19-1 record.

"Tim was an outstanding player on an outstanding team," said coach Ron Robacher.

Perhaps Balch's biggest compliment came from ELCO coach Jay Miller, whose team eliminated Delaware Valley in the PIAA quarterfinals and went on to win the state championship.

"Balch does it all for you," Miller told Robacher after ELCO downed the Warriors 4-1. "We stopped (Bill) Rosado, but we couldn't stop Balch."

Balch was joined on the first team by teammates Bill Rosado and Steve Krause at striker, Harvey Myer at midfield, and Vinnie Cavallaro and John Herring at fullback.

Rosado, who finished second in the MVP voting, was a unanimous choice at striker. He set a league record with 28 goals and six assists and wound up with a career school record of 78 goals and 15 assists.

Rosado's season total of 47 goals and eight assists included games in which he scored three goals six times, four goals four times, and five goals once.

The remainder of the first team consisted of three players from Pocono Central Catholic, two from Notre Dame, and one from Wallenpaupack.

Junior Victor Genco was named the league's top goalie with 56 votes. Teammates striker Gerard Kozic, who had eight goals and seven assists, and midfielder Mark West joined Genco on the first team.

Senior striker Al Adelmann, who scored 20 goals, and junior fullback John Sobrinski, were the Spartans' two first-team choices

Wallenpaupack striker Mark Palmer rounded out the first team picks.

In the separate balloting for second team laurels, Pocono Catholic's Joe Soranno, Mike Trombetta, and Tom Sisak were chosen along with area players Morgan Weglein and Dan Romansky of Notre Dame and Eugene Malmquist and Mike Lutfy of Delaware Valley.

Snyder's hat trick helps Snow win 25th straight

READING — Denny Snyder collected a three-goal hat trick and assisted on another score as the Pocono Snow ran its unbeaten streak to 25 games Sunday with a 7-1 Lehigh Valley Soccer League victory over Holy Rosary.

The Snow was clinging to a 1-0 lead in the first half when it suddenly broke the game open with a four-goal outburst within an eight minute span. Two goals by Manny Tavormina and one each Dale Marsh and Snyder keyed the scoring spurt which helped the Snow raise its league record to 9-0.

Mike Kravatz's second-half goal averted a shutout for Holy Rosary.

In midget action, Steve Mellen snapped a 2-2 tie to give the Allentown Soccer Club a 3-2 victory over the Snow. Dan Dietrich scored both Snow goals on assists from Dave Dietrich and Tom Perry, while Jim Hahn and Jim Collins also scored for Allentown.

How would you like to save money on your next hundred heating bills?

No more wasted fuel . . . it's easy with an inexpensive modernization of your present heating system.

After years of dependable service, heating systems often begin to grow tired. Bills go up and comfort goes down.

That's when it's time to consider a low cost heating system modernization.

Often, modernization works out so well that it's more than paid for by fuel savings alone. Not only that, modernization can also eliminate many service calls, produce more heat in all rooms and even make an old heating system adaptable to air conditioning.

If you have any doubts about your heating system, just give us a call.

WHAT WILL I DO NOW? — Darwin Brodt of East Stroudsburg State College has a perplexed look on his face as he tries to figure out how to escape from Mark Lieberman of Lehigh during the finals of the ESSC Collegiate Open Wrestling Tournament Saturday. Lieberman trounced Brodt, 23-8, to win the 190-pound title.

ESSC's Odom, Brodt forced to settle for second best

EAST STROUDSBURG — Sophomore Dan Odom learned the 'facts of life' in collegiate wrestling and junior Darwin Brodt faced possibly the toughest opponent he will face all season as the two East Stroudsburg State College wrestlers placed second in the annual ESSC Collegiate Open Wrestling Tournament Saturday night.

Odom, winner of numerous open tournaments, found out you can't let up for a second in collegiate competition as he fell to Carl Poff of Bloomsburg, 9-6, in the 134-pound finals.

Brodt, a 1976 Pennsylvania Conference champion returning to action after a year's layoff, ran into NCAA runnerup and Pan American champion Mark Lieberman of Lehigh in the 190-pound finals and was trounced, 23-8.

The Warriors had three other place-winners in their finest tournament showing in years. Sohpomore Jim Vargo was third at 167 pounds while junior Bill Regan and sophomore Sal Picone both reached the consolation finals at 150 pounds with Regan taking third on an agreed-upon forfeit and Picone fourth.

Penn State won the team championship with 100¾ points. The Nittany Lions had three individual champions in Mike DeAugustino (118), repeat champion Bill Vollrath (150) and Dave Becker (158) and two runnerups in Rick Snyder (167) and Dan Pfautz (177).

Bloomsburg, considered the class of the Pennsylvania Conference this season, was second with 94½ points. The Huskies had a pair of winners in Poff, chosen as the tournament's outstanding wrestler, and Andy Cappelli (167).

Another Bloomsburg student, Dom DiGioacchino was a champion at 177 pounds although he had to wrestle unattached because he won't be eligible until January.

Two Lehigh wrestlers, Lieberman and heavyweight Jonathan Oberly also were champions competing unattached. The other winners were Mike Rossetti of Trenton State (126) and Mike Salge of Central Connecticut (142).

The Odom-Poff match was the highlight of the final round witnessed by a small crowd in the LeRoy J. Koehler Fieldhouse.

Odom jumped to a 4-0 lead in the opening period with a takedown and a near fall. He still led, 5-3, in the second period but he stopped being aggressive and it proved fatal.

Poff caught him in a headlock and took him to his back in a five-point move to surge in front, 8-6. The Bloomsburg junior then rode Odom all but the final seconds of the third period for the three-point win.

Odom, still one of the most impressive newcomers ever to join the ESSC wrestling team, had advanced to the finals by elminating Kevin McHugh of Columbia, 5-2, in the semi-finals.

Brodt scored a major victory in the semis by eliminating Bill Bertrand of Penn State, 2-1.

The final match was over almost as soon as it started as Lieberman got a takedown and two-point near fall in the first five seconds and later added seven more takedowns and a three-point near fall.

Ignored by big bowls, accepts Fiesta bid

Penn State reluctantly takes what's offered

By United Press International

Early Saturday, Joe Paterno, coach of No. 8 Penn State, announced that his team had decided to delay consideration of any other bowl bid if it was not invited to the Cotton, Orange or Sugar Bowls.

The Nittany Lions had made the decision at a team meeting earlier in the week and Paterno had informed bowl officials that his players were willing to wait as much as a week — until after their clash with ninth-ranked Pitt on Nov. 26 — to make their decision.

The bowl bids came out late Saturday afternoon, and the Nittany Lions were overlooked by the bowls of their chioice.

No. 6 Notre Dame accepted a bid to play the Southwest Conference champion in the Cotton Bowl, No. 4 Ohio State was invited to play Southeastern champion Alabama (ranked third) in the Sugar Bowl and No. 7 Arkansas was the surprise selection of the Orange Bowl Committee to face the Big Eight champion.

And, when the Panthers accepted an invitation to play No. 15 Clemson in the Gator Bowl Dec. 30 in Jacksonville, Fla., Penn State clarified its statement and announced it would accept an invitation to play the Western Athletic Conference champion in the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz., on Dec. 25.

"We made a statement earlier this week that we would wait to play our way into a major bowl, if necessary," Paterno said in a prepared statement Saturday night. "The squad had voted to accept a Fiesta Bowl bid if the Cotton, Orange and Sugar Bowls would not wait until after November 26.

"We have heard many great things about the Fiesta Bowl," Paterno said. "We feel we will be taking an outstanding team to the bowl and we hope to prove it this week in Pittsburgh.

"We feel we have a very fine football team. They're a great group of young men and they have worked very hard."

In the WAC race, second-place Colorado State upset first-place and 11th-ranked Arizona State 25-14 Saturday. One of those two teams should be Penn State's opponent in the Fiesta Bowl.

Orange Bowl Selection Committee Chairman Bob Lafferty explained why Arkansas was selected over Penn State.

"We have been watching them all year," said Lafferty about Arkansas. "Right now Arkansas is rated higher than Penn State and being that Arkansas has never been here before, we thought it would be a great classic."

Arkansas, which trounced Southern Methodist 47-7 Saturday to raise its record to 9-1, will meet the winner of Friday's game between No. 2 Oklahoma and No. 10 Nebraska. Arkansas has one game remaining, against Texas Tech.

Elsewhere, fifth-ranked Michigan defeated fourth-ranked Ohio State 14-6 Saturday, to tie the Buckeyes for first place in the Big Ten and earn Michigan a second straight trip to the Rose Bowl. Michigan, which lost last year at Pasadena, will face the Pacific Eight champion, either 16th-ranked UCLA or Washington on Jan. 2.

Notre Dame, which defeated Air Force 45-0, will meet the winner of next week's game between No. 1 Texas and No. 12 Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl.

If Texas A&M wins, it must then defeat Baylor to earn a trip to the Cotton Bowl. Texas automatically goes with a victory over the Aggies. Both teams won Saturday, with Texas beating Baylor 29-7 and Texas A&M defeating TCU 52-23.

In the event Texas A&M does not make it to the Cotton Bowl, the Aggies have already accepted a bid to play in the Bluebonnet Bowl on Dec. 31.

North Carolina, in a three-way tie for 16th, topped Duke 16-3 to clinch the Atlantic Coast Conference title and a trip to the Liberty Bowl Dec. 19 in Memphis, Tenn., against the loser of the Oklahoma-Nebraska game.

Both teams heading for the Tangerine Bowl were losers Saturday. No. 16 Texas Tech was embarrassed by Houston 45-7 and Florida State went down 41-16 to San Diego State.

No. 15 Clemson, on its way to the Gator Bowl, beat South Carolina 31-27, No. 14 North Texas State defeated Louisiana Tech 41-14 and No. 19 Iowa State topped Oklahoma State 21-13. Stanford topped California 21-3 and agreed to play in the Sun Bowl while North Carolina State accepted an invitation to the Peach Bowl against an undetermined opponent.

Maryland and Minnesota will play in the first Hall of Fame Classic Dec. 22 at Birmingham.

Oklahoma, Alabama, Penn State, Pittsburgh, Nebraska and UCLA were all idle Saturday.

Hayes gets mad, slugs cameraman

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Woody Hayes says he's tired of having television cameras stuck in his face every time something interesting happens on the football field. So Saturday he slugged a cameraman.

"You have somebody stick it in your face every week and see how you like it," the tempermental Buckeye coach stormed at reporters after his team's 14-6 loss to Michigan.

Later, back in Columbus, he added, "I'm so darn disgusted with having cameras pushed at me. Your team makes a mistake, you're mad, and you turn around and there's that thing pointing at you. I'm fed up with it."

What prompted the explosion was quarterback Rod Gerald's fumble at the Michigan 8 yard line on what proved to be Ohio State's last scoring chance. The Rose Bowl-bound Wolverines recovered, and Hayes came apart.

After just staring for a few seconds shaking his head, he grabbed his earphones and smashed them to the ground. Then he turned and spotted the lens staring at him.

He charged toward ABC cameraman Mike Freedman of Los Angeles and slugged him with an uppercut to the chest that sent the victim staggering. It was all shown to a national audience and recorded on videotape.

Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke said in Chicago later that he was aware of the incident, but he had no details and would not comment. The team later accepted a bid to play Alabama in the Sugar Bowl.

The Hayes-Freedman match wasn't the only altercation of the day before a record Michigan crowd of 106,024. The Ohio State team got some contact work even before the game began.

Michigan traditionally enters the field by running under a large blue banner, and team members jump up to slap it as they pour across the field.

Saturday, however, Buckeye players parked themselves under that banner, prompting some pushing and shoving between the visitors and Wolverine supporters holding up the sign while the rabid home crowd booed vehemently.

Bonnett captures duel to wire against Petty

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI) — Neil Bonnett, second-year NASCAR Driver from Hueytown, Ala., outdueled Richard Petty to the finish line by half a second Sunday to win the grand National 500 mile finale of the year for his first super speedway triumph.

Bonnett, who came into grand national racing last year as Bobby Allison's protege and Petty, the pole-sitter who was bidding for his first Ontario Motor Speedway win, staged a stirring, bumper-to-bumper duel over the last seven laps after the green flag came out following a crash by Benny Parsons.

For Bonnett, 31, it was his second grand national win of the year. He captured the Capital City 400 at Richmond, Va., Sept. 11.

Bonnett, the No.-2 qualifier in a 1974 Dodge, was leading Petty by eight seconds and seemed fully in control of the race when Parsons hit the wall in turn three on the 180th lap of the 200-lap race.

The yellow flag then came out and did not come off until the 193rd lap and the race then was really on. Bonnett maintained his lead on the 193rd lap, but Petty shot past him on backstretch on the 194th lap.

But Bonnett, who drives for coal mining businessman Jim Stacey, regained the lead at the first turn of the 195th lap and was able to hold off the veteran from Randleman, N.C., also in a 1974 Dodge.

Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., finished third in his 1977 Chevrolet, who already had wrapped up the NASCAR driving title this year, finished third one second back of Petty.

There were 33 lead changes among 10 drivers and Bonnett was in front for 94 of the laps.

Buddy Baker finished fourth, followed by defending Ontario champion David Pearson, Richard Brooks, Bobby Allison, rookie Ricky Rudd and James Hylton.

Bonnett's average speed was 128.296 miles per hour and he completed the 500 miles in four hours, 29 minutes and 32 seconds.

Janet Guthrie, who started 15th in the 40-car field, became the first woman ever to lead a NASCAR grand national race when she took over first from Rudd on the 44th lap and led through the 47th lap before Hylton went in front.

Warrior volleyball squad wins Eastern regional title

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. — It's on to the nationals now for the championship East Stroudsburg State College women's volleyball team.

The Warriors clinched a berth in the AIAW Small College Volleyball Championships Dec. 8-10 in Naperville, Ill. by winning the Eastern Regional title with a pair of victories Saturday.

Coach Bob Sweeney's team, top-seeded in the 16-team field, defeated second-seeded George Washington University, 15-12, 6-15, 15-9, in the finals.

In the semi-finals, ESSC had squeaked by sixth-seeded Yale, 15-6, 10-15, 15-13, while George Washington had eliminated third-seeded Ithaca, 6-15, 15-13, 15-4.

The serving of senior Dawn Frey and spikes by freshman Kathy Hall clinched the victory in both matches.

In the third game against Yale, the Warriors trailed by 5-9 before Laurie Ziegler put the team ahead, 10-9, with five straight winning serves.

Then with the score, 13-13, Frey put in two winning serves including an ace on the 15th point after Hall had spiked in a winner on the 14th.

The ESSC team overcame two injuries and ran out of substitutions in the final game against George Washington.

Holly Kintner replaced starter Terry Wansart, who suffered an ankle injury midway through the game, and Susie Waybright went in as a setter for Barb Grady, who hurt her hand moments later.

The game went so long that the team used up its alloted 12 substitutions and Coach Sweeney had to stay with the six players on the court, regardless of the rotation.

After leading by 12-4, the Warriors saw their lead shrink to 12-9 before Frey went to work.

The senior from Dallastown, whose spiking had been a key in the first game, hit three hard serves for winning points, again ending the match with an ace.

Hall accounted for the 14th point again with a spike after a perfect set by Waybright.

In earlier games, Sweeney indicated that Wansart, Anne Lacey and Shelly Woods also had contributed to the team's spiking with Deb Prescott doing the setting.

The two wins raised the Warriors' record to 37-11.

Bowling Classic results

STROUDSBURG — Lorraine Carson of Stroudsburg and Bill Detrick Jr. of East Stroudsburg captured the eighth set of preliminary matches Sunday in the WVPO Bowling Classic at Colonial Lanes.

ESSC sophomore sets mini-marathon mark

EAST STROUDSBURG — Sophomore Sam Bruce of East Stroudsburg State College set a course record in winning the ninth annual Pocono Mini-Marathon Saturday.

Bruce covered the 10.8-mile distance around the ESSC campus in 56:27, breaking the mark of 56:44 set by Bo Brennan of Phillipsburg, N.J. last year.

Tom Kinsman, an ESSC graduate student, was second in 56:49 with Dave Hartzell, another ESSC student, third in 1:04.59.

Other divisions were won by Claude Hucorne of East Stroudsburg, masters division (10.8 miles), 1:04.15; Sue Carden of Stroudsburg, women's division (3.0 miles), 20:18; and Dave Vennel of Bangor, high school division (5.9 miles), 32:57.

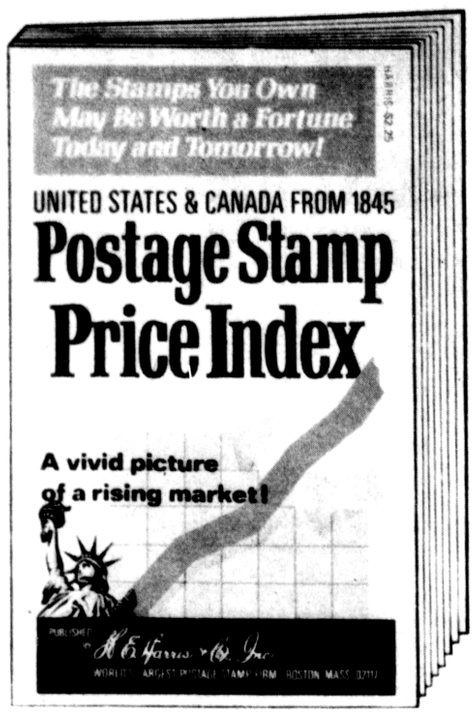
New index traces stamps



BOSTON — A brand-new "Postage Stamp Price Index" tracing over 25 years of market activity in most United States and Canadian stamps has just been released by H. E. Harris & Co., Inc. of Boston.

The paperback will retail at $2.25 (slightly higher in Canada) and will be available through stamp dealers, bookstores, etc. There is an additional 50-cent charge for postage and handling on mail orders sent directly to the Harris company.

Covering issues from 1845 to the present, the Price Index is a compact guide to postage stamp prices decade by decade from 1950 to 1977, as taken over from the Harris US/BNA Catalog, itself the winner of seven international awards in philatelic literature competitions. While Harris has always promoted stamp collecting for fun, education and relaxation rather than investment, this book is designed primarily for investors and for those who want to keep track of the approximate retail value of their holdings (as for insurance purposes).

The new publication can save the investor or stamp market analyst hundreds of hours of laborious research, and while no one can accurately predict the future market value of stamps, use of the information in this book as to trends and patterns can result in more educated guesses, a company spokesman said.

Present plans call for the book to be updated and reissued each fall.

Three stamps are scheduled for release during January — a single stamp for the 100th anniversary of Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer, and two stamps for the 200th anniversary of the discovery of the Hawaiian Islands by Captain James Cook.

No date or place of first day issue has been given.

Watermarks: A watermark is a pattern impressed into the paper during its manufacture. If the paper is to be watermarked shapes known as "bits" are affixed to the roll (called a "dandy roller" under which the paper passes) at regular intervals, and as the paper passes under this roller these "bits" cause a slight thinning of the paper as they are impressed into the pulp.

Thus when the paper is held up to the light the watermarks show since the paper is thinner at that point and is more transparent.

Watermarks can take the form of letters, symbols of various other forms or combinations of two or more.

Watermarks have been used from the very earliest days of postage stamps in an attempt to discourage counterfeiting.

The United States printed stamps on Watermarked paper for a short period only, from 1894 to 1915.

The Pocono Mountain Stamp club will meet Tuesday, December 6 at 8 p.m. at which time Joe VonHahn will show slides of U.S. 1 and E2.

Moreau returns to star in film

PARIS (UPI) — Film star Jeanne Moreau will return to her native France from Los Angeles in 1978 to star in a film, "Adolescence," after first acting in a Hollywood production directed by her new husband, William Friedkain.

Her film here concerns a 1938 pre-war French village, with the lives of adults seen through the eyes of a young girl.

Should lay hypnotists be banned?

By KAREN SOUTHWICK

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Lay hypnotists across the nation offer simplistic mind-over-matter solutions to pain, nerves and obesity all too attractive to the desperate and uninformed.

Ralph Grossi, a nationally known Pittsburgh hypnotist whose methods have stirred controversy, promises to help people lose weight, stop smoking and eliminate bad habits in four short visits. He also says he helps some regress to a previous life.

"I've hypnotized 100,000," Grossi boasts. "Ninety percent lose over 10 pounds the first week."

Hypnosis, he explains, reinforces a conscious desire with the subconscious. His subjects testify the method works. Professional psychologists say the bad habit may be eliminated, but the attitudes that led to it remain.

Grossi learned hypnosis from a World War II army buddy, and has since added a "doctor of psychology" degree through a correspondence course from Neotarian College of Kansas City, Mo., a non-accredited institution.

Despite a lack of medical training, Grossi has built a lucrative practice in hypnosis clinics in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. He charges $59 for four visits — nonrefundable and payable at the first visit. The charge to be "age-regressed" to a previous life is $75.

The national and local societies of clinical hypnotists — health professionals with an M.D., DDS, or Ph.D. in psychology — assail Grossi for his non-medical background and his grandiose promises.

"He's a con man out for a buck," said Dr. Russell Scott, president of the Western Pennsylvania Society of Clinical Hypnosis. "The man is a charlatan preying upon people who can least afford to be victimized.

"I would never make a referral to Grossi. The position of the American Medical Association and the American Psychiatric Association is that under no circumstances should any professional make a referral to a lay hypnotist."

Dr. Kay Thompson, who is the immediate past president of the American Society of Clinical Hypnosis, noted the United States is one of only three nations that does not restrict hypnosis to the health fields.

She estimated there are 4,000 lay hypnotists nationwide — about half in California and 400 in Pennsylvania.

The society "would like to see hypnosis limited to those people trained professionally in the healing arts. Stage hypnosis — and the kind of stuff Grossi does — would be ruled out," Scott said.

Lay hypnotists "are not qualified to do the vast majority of things Grossi says he does," Scott said, but they're organized into a union affiliated with the AFL-CIO so "it's very difficult to deal with."

"Hypnosis is the only tool Grossi has," Thompson said. "He's not qualified to recognize or treat any related symptoms of obesity.

"Anybody can be a hypnotist," she said. "If you have a good subject you are a good hypnotist."

Grossi admits he only motivates people "to do what they already want to do."

But he dismissed the charges of Thompson and Scott as jealousy "because I am so successful.

"I am a hypnotherapist rather than just a psychologist," he said.

"I do therapy but not as a psychiatrist would do it. You say, 'I am nervous.' I say to you, 'You are not going to be nervous.'"

Grossi said he has regressed 6,000 persons to a previous life, including some on national television.

He regressed Donna Panzo, a Charleroi, Pa., housewife who described herself as a Bulgarian in the 19th century and spoke her language.

However, Nick Jordanoff, who spoke Bulgarian as his first language, said of what she was saying, "It's not any language I've ever heard. I think it's just nonsense words that maybe to her sound foreign."

Ann Landers

Zipper history

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you had a letter in your column about a guy who busted his zipper. Your reply gave the impression that when you were a little girl zippers were considered quite a novelty.

A lot of readers jumped on you and said zippers have been around for at least 80 years. Well — here's the straight story and you are right.

Charles Clark, author of "Brainstorming," said, "Each one of us should understand there is always resistance to a new idea so don't be discouraged."

He went on to tell of a young salesman back in 1926 who called on a company that made "hookless fasteners." Someone asked him how they might sell more of them and he replied, "Why not use them instead of buttons in the front of men's trousers?"

Everyone present was convulsed with laughter. They declared it was the craziest idea they had ever heard of. What self-respecting man would wear pants with a zipper in front?

Even if they were foolish enough to do it there were bound to be some dreadful accidents and the company would surely go broke from the lawsuits.

Well — I don't need to tell you what happened. The zipper became one of the most successful products ever invented. And you WERE a little girl in 1926. —

Ye Ol' Historian

Dear Ol' His: In 1926, I was eight years old. O.K. — start figuring, girls. Although I've been told I am foolish I have always been very up-front about my age. It's interesting that the women who knock a few years off their own invariably add them on to someone else's.

Dear Ann: Seven years ago I met a man who was the kindest person I had ever known. We grew to be very close friends but he never asked me to marry him. I am 46 years old (a nurse) and he is 44 — a police officer.

The problem: I assisted this man with a $5,000 commitment. Did I do the right thing? Should I continue to help him out financially if he asks?

He treats me very well but what if he should change — or meet someone else? I would be left out in the cold with no savings. I need your advice right away. —

Not Sleeping Very Well In San Diego

Dear Not Sleeping: Your letter leaves many vital questions unanswered. Such as: Are you living together? Is he free to marry you? Did you ask him to sign a note when he borrowed the money or did you just give it to him? Has he hinted that he needs more? What kind of "commitment" did he have for $5,000? Does he gamble?

I suggest you talk this over with a clergyman or a friend whose judgment you trust. In the meantime, don't lend him any more money. Now is the time to think about your future in case you end up alone.

Dear Ann: I'm 27, a career women, and happy with my life. Problem: The lush in the next apartment. She's a big-hearted person, loves a good time and her husband's in Europe on a government assignment until February.

I made the mistake of inviting her in one evening when there was an extra man. Now she comes over whenever she hears I have company, fixes herself a drink and stays all evening.

The doll has eased her way into my circle of friends, gets pie-eyed and I'm afraid of what might happen. She has already "lost her head" with two men that I know of. I'm scared stiff the word may get to her husband that I encouraged his wife to play around and I don't need that kind of trouble. What can I do?

Lexington, Ky.

Dear Lex: Tell the doll she is no longer free to drop in because her conduct is unacceptable. With a little luck she'll get mad and never speak to you again.

questions and answers

Q. I'm 62 years old and my only income is $25 a week I get from a boarder who rents an upstairs room in my small house. For years my son helped support me, but he died last month in a terrible accident. I was wondering if I could get monthly social security benefits based on his earnings record?

A. You might be able to get benefits as a dependent parent. Parents 62 or over who were dependent on a working son or daughter for half or more of their support, generally would be eligible for benefits based on their deceased child's earnings record, if the son or daughter worked long enough in a job covered by social security.

Q. We have a 13-year-old daughter who's mentally retarded. We don't have much money coming in and it's a real struggle to provide the special care she needs. Would she be eligible for any help under the supplemental security income program?

A. Your disabled daughter may be able to get monthly SSI payments. It would depend on your income and other resources. To apply for SSI in behalf of your daughter, just get in touch with any social security office.

Q. For many years I've made my living as a self-employed seamstress. Now my arthritis is so bad I can't sew anymore. I don't know how else to make a living, yet my claim for social security disability benefits was denied. I don't understand this decision at all because my doctors clearly stated in their reports that I may never be able to work as a seamstress again.

A. To be considered disabled for social security purposes, you must have a physical or mental impairment that keeps you from doing any substantial gainful work for at least a year or more. It may be that your disability claim was denied because it was felt that your disability would not prevent you from doing other work. However, you can appeal the decision. Contact your social security office and someone there will explain the denial of your claim and the appeal procedures.

Q. When I became 65 I chose not to enroll for Medicare medical insurance. Now I'm 67 and want the protection. I've been told that my premium will be higher because I didn't take it at 65. Why?

A. The law requires that your premium be increased by 10 percent for each full 12 month period that you could have been enrolled in Medicare's medical insurance plan but were not. This increase is not intended to penalize you but rather to take into account the higher cost of insuring you as you get older and need more health care. If people waited until they become ill before enrolling in Medicare's medical insurance plan, paid no greater premium, it would increase the cost of the program for everyone and be especially unfair to those who enroll when they first had the opportunity to do so.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING
COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM
EAST STROUDSBURG, PA.

IN ACCORDANCE WITH the Borough's plan for citizen Participation, Borough Council's Technical Advisory Committee will conduct a public meeting December 6, 1977 at 7:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers, Municipal Building, Crystal and Analomink Streets, East Stroudsburg, Pa.

The purpose of this meeting is to review the highlights of the initial public meetings of October 20th and November 1st and summarize the statement of views and submission of proposals by low and moderate income people and-or residents of blighted neighborhoods, and whether such views and-or proposals will be incorporated in the application. The Borough will also list any significant needs, preferences or proposals expressed at the initial meetings which it believes should not be incorporated into its application for 4th Year funding under the Community Development Block Grant Program.

The Borough anticipates holding another public meeting on December 20th to provide an opportunity for persons to review and comment prior to Council adoption of a proposed application and housing assistance plan. An application requesting funds in the approximate amount of $332,000 is to be sent to A-95 Clearing House by late December and to the Department of Housing and Urban Development by February 6, 1978.

The Citizen Participation Plan is on file at the Municipal Building for public inspection and comment. The Borough's Performance Reports and past Year's Applications are also on file at the Borough Manager's Office and available for inspection by the public during regular working hours.

Tear gas distressed Carters

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

President and Mrs. Carter had their first experience with demonstrations and tear gas when the Shah of Iran visited the White House.

Both confessed that at first they didn't realize that their watery eyes and coughing were caused by tear gas. But a Secret Service agent hastily reassured the first lady during the outdoor ceremony on the South Lawn.

For Washington reporters it was in a sense a return to the sixties, but the bitterness and violence never seemed as present with the Vietnam protesters as it was with the anti-shah factions who came to Washington.

Two other presidents, Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon, felt the full brunt of being under siege.

But Carter made it up to the shah in delivering one of the most lavish toasts ever heaped on a foreign leader during a White House state dinner. He praised his qualities of leadership, courage, graciousness. The shah said afterwards it was the toast, not the tear gas, that moved him to tears.

Carter also went out of his way during the entertainment to spotlight the performers, jazz musician Dizzy Gillespie and vocalist Sarah Vaughn, who gave a topnotch performance, with Gillespie pulling the bow tie of his tuxedo askew and pouring it on. But it was jazz pianist Earl "Fatha" Hines, who was invited as a guest, not a performer, who stole the show.

Asked to do a number, Hines brought down the house, and there was a bit of sympathy for Gillespie and Vaughn, some of whose jazz numbers were a bit way out for the crowd.

Sensing that Hines had been given too much of the spotlight, Carter called Vaughn back for a number and she belted out "I've Got It Bad and That Ain't Good," a familiar song that brought the audience to its feet.

The question of President Carter's appointment to the Corporation for Public Broadcasting of Irby Turner of Belzoni, Miss., came up at a White House briefing recently in connection with allegations that Belzoni had been a center of white Citizens Council activity.

John Osborne of the New Republic, who sometimes chides reporters for bringing up allegations against persons who aren't present to defend themselves, made an exception for himself.

"I myself have objected sometimes to people raising names of this sort," Osborne said. "But in this case, was the President, as a Georgian, as a former governor of Georgia, as the supposed leader of the more liberal elements in south Georgia, aware of Belzoni, Mississippi's reputation — and I ask this as a Mississippian — as being the meanest, nastiest town in Mississippi in that period on racial matters?"

Press secretary Jody Powell replied: "I would think probably not, but I don't know of my own, direct knowledge whether he was aware of your vicious assault upon the people of Belzoni."

Then Osborne said: "Personally, as a white Mississippian visiting the place, that experience lies behind my question."

At that point another reporter said: "Jody, do you and the President think this is the appropriate forum ... to ... a town in Mississippi without giving it a chance to" defend itself.

"Having a lot of kinfolks that live in a lot of mean towns," Powell replied to a background of laughter, "perhaps even some mean kinfolks that live in a lot of nice towns..."

Even the mounted police horses got it during the Iranian student demonstrations near the White House. One park service policeman's horse was cut below the eye. Along came a young female veterinarian in uniform and, recognizing the horse, she said: "Now, Sam, this is going to hurt."

Without flinching Sam stood quietly as she put three stitches under his eye and then he went back on duty.

Desire marriage

MARRIAGE?: (Q.) I have known this guy Gene for four months and we really love each other a lot. We are wanting to get married but my parents won't let us. Gene is real nice and wants to get me away from them because they are always beating on me, and stuff.

He has a house we can live in. The only way we will be able to get married is either to wait two years or until he gets me pregnant. We don't want to wait two years and we don't want any babies until we are married for a while.

I can't talk to my parents because we either have company, I'm at school, they're at work, they're busy, or asleep. What should we do? I am 16 and Gene is 22. —

Trying in Oklahoma

(A.) You and your parents have trouble with each other. This does not, however, mean that you can leave troubles behind by leaving them.

Marrying a man you have known only four months would almost surely plunge you into new trouble.

Several things you say tell me you do not understand real love and you are not mature enough for marriage. Pregnancy or a house to live in is not a good reason for marriage. Not talking out problems because everyone is busy is not a sensible way to live.

Tell Gene you cannot marry him now or promise to marry him in two years. If you have been having sex with him stop doing so. Get your high school diploma before seriously considering marriage with Gene or anyone. Find time to talk with your parents about your future. Listen to what they have to say. If you will listen to them, they will listen to you.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — We saw "Golda" at the Morosco with Golda Meir herself in the audience which may have diminished some of the play's impact; again, it added a dimension of immediacy and authenticity which probably improved the mood of a sadly inactive drama, the theme too big for its theatrical confinement . . . Anne Bancroft sacrificed all glamor and theatrical dazzle via makeup and false wrinkles and fabricated additions of plastic dangling laryngeal muscles of old age to deliver a fascinating physical portrait of the whole world's great and gallant Jewish Mother; but the play's the thing, unable to grasp either the excitement or significance of one of history's great socio-geographical dramas . . . William Gibson is the author, far beneath his better efforts.

Liza's "The Act" isn't selling out . . . N. Y. is lucky not to get the Olympics: Montreal still is a billion in the red after its Olympian fiscal failure . . . Burt Reynolds loves Georgia and Ga. thinks Burt's okay, too: he's made three films there and opened a restaurant — so on Dec. 1 Atlanta will stage a "Thank You, Burt Reynolds" day . . . Atlanta might agree with us that the GWTW sequel totes the clumsiest movie title of the epoch: "Tara: The Continuation of Gone With the Wind" . . . The sequel will pay Margaret Mitchell's estate more than she got for the original GWTW film rights: $50,000; although its vast success moved the always stylish David O. Selznick to send Margaret Mitchell a second grateful $50,000 when that was real money and not just a H'wood afterthought.

Forrest Tucker had a heart attack . . . George Hamilton and his ex Alana, a cutrate Noel Coward comedy team of sorts, will co-host a daytime TV show — if someone can peddle it . . . "Omen II" producer Harvey Bernhard and director Mike Hodges fell far enough out to let Don Taylor grab Mike's megaphone . . . Sylvia Syms was so confident she'd be well again that she signed contracts to succeed Mabel Mercer at Cleo's Nov. 29 while recuperating in Lenox Hill Hospital.

Muhammad Ali has a TV interview taped but not due until Jan. in which he demands three states be set aside for blacks and solve, it says here, South African apartheid . . . Meanwhile back at the cash register Ali's next take-home will be commercials for an anti-roach spray.

Jennifer O'Neill got her mutt into the dog-blamed Pen & Pencil claiming it's her trained guard-dog . . . La Scala owner Arturo Mirtallo makes his film debut in the "Fingers" flick but swears it's no big deal: "I play a knuckle," he offhands . . . Age of Vulgarity — a new X-rated film is titled "Teddy Bare," also a vicious anti-Teddy Kennedy book . . . Neil Sedaka's 14-year-old Dara is a tiny nepot: makes her singing debut with an album of pop-tunes — her pop's hits . . . Remember when England owned Arabia? Now one of London's formerly most exclusive sections, The Boltons, suffers a burnoose around its chic. Very out.

Charo Cugat should be more charitable about Cugie's age; he was old when she status-climbed his marital whim: Says "I'm still young and very active and he's 78 and very tired" . . . Dagmar looked terrif at Wally's, 60 pounds prettier . . . The Art Syms Quartet at Onde's stays and plays together familially: Art's on piano, wife Kitty sings while her brother toots the tenor sax and a cousin paradiddles the drums . . . Reminds us of Mack Kriendler of the vast "21" Kriendler-Berns family-owners who saw Sherman Billingsley's 14-carat gold chain replacing the traditional velvet rope at the Stork Club. Mack told Sherm, "We'll have to get one for 21." Riposted Sherm: "You don't need one — you use a cousin."

Bobby Vinton did such a slow burn and delayed take over the wave of Polish jokes that the Popolska Kid decided he'll do a TV special — from Warsaw. Hopes to coax along Polish-American mummers such as Ted Knight, Liberace, etc. . . . Two thousand feet will go dead at Roseland Thanksgiving evening: the world's foremost ballroom bought 1,000 turkeys for its Thanksgiving dinners . . . Rock-concert maestro Sid Bernstein's trying to book Sinatra into Radio City Music Hall . . . Former Dick Cavett staffer Richard Hall got his own "Celebrity Cabaret" TV series.

Rosalind Russell's autobiography "Life Is a Banquet" finished for Random House just before her death is a charming, delightful, warm, wittily, philosophically, glamorously civilized enjoyment of her career and the parallel dazzle of her long and deserved life in the limelight. It's a joy. Her life was a banquet, indeed, her stardom earned, her physical wallops accepted with endearing grace and cheeful resignation. One of the great ladies of all showbiz time.

Chips: The late Horace McMahon's (and Bing's leading-lady Louise Campbell's) daughter Kate went to Cuba on a college-student seminar sponsored by the Mass. Lt. Guv; Robert Stack's Elizabeth signed for a dog-food commerical (Alpo) — and a key role in "Lassie, My Lassie," with Jimmy Stewart; the late Gilbert Seldes' daughter Marion opens this week on Bdwy. in "The Merchant"; Joyn Garfield's sprig Julie, same show (the one Zero Mostel escaped by death).

Aspirin 'subs' just as good

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Americans swallow more than 10 million aspirin tablets per day because of deceptive advertising, about the drug, says Dr. Richard S. Farr, an allergy specialist and visiting professor of pathology at the University of Texas Health Science Center.

Farr said consumers have been misled into believing aspirin products are a cure-all for every ache or ailment, but that aspirin substitutes reduce pain and fever just as well.

Your Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Important now: common sense, logical analysis, ease of action. Domestic and social interests highly favored. Don't waste time on regrets.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Orient yourself to beneficial changing conditions. Take a long, hard, objective look in order to reach accurate appraisals.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — A spirited day, even taxing at moments. But then, Geminians know how to benefit by challenges and hurdle obstacles in the most unexpected ways.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Good lunar influences stimulate your inspiration, ideas for a new strategy through which to attain objectives. Job matters under especially beneficent aspects.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Take constructive action on a project which you may have had in mind for some time. With good preparation, you should be able to complete it now.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — You don't need to look afar for best returns. They will come from within your immediate surroundings and, perhaps, through some "unlikely" persons. A good day!

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Quite unexpectedly, you may be afforded the chance to do something "different," attain a surer foothold on the ladder to success. Keep alert and ready to act.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — Do not let problems or discussions grow out of proportion. Hold yourself in check, expecially if dealing with superiors, business associates.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Stellar influences on the mild side. You are just about on your own to decide, act, work out new tactics, but don't waste time on nonessentials.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Saturn influences fine! Now's the time to launch new ventures, set forth your ingenious ideas and make decisions involving future activities.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — A different approach rather than a complete change of objective may be the keynote to day's success. Take time to think things out, to absorb details.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — A little more restraint may be needed to improve your chances for gain now. Don't force issues and DO prepare well. Romance and travel favored.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great strength of purpose and the acumen needed to handle big enterprises; also, unlike many of your Sign, you have the patience for tedious tasks. Scorpio is a Sign of resolution, determination and that "sixth sense" so valuable in handling emergencies. Once you curb your tendency toward overaggressiveness, your innate vision and industriousness will help you climb the steepest hills. You have a keen sense of the dramatic and could succeed in the theater — especially as actor or playwrighter; have considerable inventive ability and gifts for music, dancing and writing. Birthdate of: Francois Voltaire, French poet, dramatist; Desire Cardinal Mercier, Belgian hero, World War I; Stan Musial, baseball player.

Opening lead - two of hearts.

There is no doubt that a fascinating book could be written, featuring the many hundreds of simple or gross errors that have been made over the years in the annual world championship. This merely reinforces the prevailing opinion that bridge is too tough a game for anyone, anywhere, to play perfectly.

Consider this deal from the match between New Zealand and the U.S. in 1974. The bidding went as shown when New Zealand held the North-South hands. Two clubs was a strong artificial bid, two diamonds was an artificial negative response, two notrump showed 21-22 points, and three hearts was a transfer bid indicating spade length.

West led a heart against four spades. Declarer took East's king with the ace and returned a heart. West went up with the queen and led a third heart, ruffed by declarer. South now played the A-Q of spades. West took the queen with the king and returned his eight of spades to dummy's nine.

Declarer then led a low diamond from dummy and successfully finessed the queen. He next played the ace and another diamond. This method of play would have succeeded had declarer found the diamonds divided 3-3, or had either defender held the doubleton ten or doubleton king of diamonds. The way the cards were divided, though, South later had to lose a club trick and go down one.

Actually, declarer was the victim of a blind spot. He had the contract firmly in tow after winning the diamond finesse. All he then had to do was lead the ace and a low club to dummy's queen. This would have made his jack of clubs a trick and allowed him to discard a diamond from dummy on it. His only losers would have been a spade, a heart and a club.

Doggy door

I have the only dog in North America with kidneys the size of a comma.

That explains why our house is carpeted with wall-to-wall urine.

That explains why our guests have to keep moving lest they be mistaken for a wall.

That explains why we made a decision to install a doggy door for his convenience. You know, those little flaps you cut out in the middle of a $300 door.

"You'll get used to it," I explained. "It's not the end of the world. Just adjust to seeing it and after awhile it'll become as commonplace as the garage."

"I won't get used to it," whimpered my husband. "Our door is being violated. Can't you think of another way to train him? Have you tried rubbing his nose in it and putting him outside?"

"It didn't work," I said.

"It worked for the kids."

"That was different. With them, it was an incentive. We told them if they didn't go through a dry night, they couldn't borrow the car."

The opening of the doggy door measured 8½ inches by 12½ inches. To the dog it was like jumping the Snake River . . . blindfolded . . . on a tractor mower.

The training proved to be rather simple. Within an hour, I figured out if you pushed the plastic insert with your nose hard enough, it opened to the outside and it was just a matter of trying to jump for a little impetus, balance your paws on the sill, and push yourself through.

It took the dog a little longer to comprehend.

"Do not look upon it as the Berlin Wall," I said one day as I rubbed my raw shoulder, "it's a two-way street. You can go out and you can come back in whenever you please. Face it, Bunkie, there's a whole community of dogs out there who are not trained to shag rugs."

Yesterday, one of the kids came in absolutely breathless. "Hey, Mom, the dog's at the door trying to get out." I was ecstatic. "Where is he?" I asked as I viewed the door.

"He's in the hallway standing at the door without the hole in it."

If a family of trolls ever needs a house, it'll be a seller's market.

Faye frolics

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Alice Faye, the 20th Century-Fox musical star of the 1930s and 1940s, returns to the movies for the first time since 1962 to star in "Lassie, My Lassie." Miss Faye, who last sang in "State Fair," will sing "A Rose Is Not A Rose Without Thorns" in the Lassie film.

New studies with 'wonder' drug

I have in front of me a column that you wrote a long time ago (I save them) on a new wonder drug, DMSO. Whatever happened to it and why is it not in use? —

Mr. D.D., La.

Dear Mr. D.:

DMSO is "dimethyl sulfoxide." When it was first found in a factory waste product, it was considered one of the great discoveries on the horizon of modern medicine.

Because of some unfortunate side reactions in experimental animals, the Federal Drug Administration ruled that the clinical use of DMSO in human beings was to be discontinued. Although interest in it has really never disappeared, only a few studies have been performed in recent years.

Today, DMSO is once again being used experimentally by specialized groups in selected hospitals in the U. S. Scientists are again trying to evaluate its advantages in circulatory problems, on Raynaud's disease, some types of arthritis, and with isolated eye conditions. Clot formations in the veins and injuries to the spinal cord are thought to respond in some instances to the drug. It is the hope of the scientific community that experimental programs may be continued, especially if some of the good promises of DMSO are found to be correct.

* * *

I have scoured the scientific literature in the hope that I could find an answer to a most devastating problem. I am diabetic and 47. I have found that with the onset of the diabetes, I have become sexually impotent. Have you any knowledge of such a relationship? Can you direct me to a source of information about this? —

Mr. F.L.C., Mich.

Dear Mr. C.:

I am surprised that you have not been able to find the information you seek. There is a long-standing recognition of the occasional existence of impotence in the male diabetic.

Neurological abnormalities are not unusual in some cases of diabetes. Since penile erection is a neurological phenomenon, it is understandable that impotence can occur in some instances.

Dr. Max Ellenberg, specialist in diabetes at the Mt. Sinai Medical Center in New York City, reported an interesting study of impotence in the male diabetic. He classified a number of possibilities to account for the condition. Some were physical in origin, others were psychological in origin. A number of forms of treatment were tried with varying results.

The use of hormones did not bring very satisfactory results. A number of excellent new surgical procedures, however, are now being tried by plastic surgeons. These operations may be of particular significance because the impotent male diabetic does not necessarily lose sexual desire. It might be advantageous for you to pursue this approach to therapy.

Live TV bullfight

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — The bullfighting season got underway in Peru recently and plans are being made to televise one of the bullfights worldwide via satellite. The season runs until Dec. 18 and will include 14 programs with 17 matadors from Peru, Spain and other countries.

Hunters fight Pa. poachers

By WILLIAM P. MOORE

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pennsylvania hunters are becoming increasingly aware of their responsibility to alert authorities to poaching and other hunting violations under a new state Game Commission program.

SPORT, or Sportsman Policing Our Ranks Together, is catching on well a little more than a year after its initiation, Game Commission spokesman Ted Godshall said.

"We've got to get rid of these slob hunters, or they'll get rid of us," he said, explaining the reason for SPORT.

"In it we encourage sportsmen to try to clean up their own act, and one of the approaches to it is: if you see a violation, get the guy's number and turn it over. We'll take it from there."

He emphasized that so-called "slob hunters" comprise only a minute fraction of Pennsylvania's large hunting population.

The program's biggest success so far came earlier in November when a Jefferson County hunter saw four deer carcasses hanging in a wooded section near a camp. Since the state's deer season does not begin until Nov. 28, he alerted district game protector Adam O'Hara.

O'Hara put the area under surveillance, and witnessed eight Pittsburgh men returning to retrieve the whitetails. The deer had been shot with .22 caliber rifles.

The eight men were fined up to $800 dollars each, and face revocation of their hunting rights.

"This is one of the examples," Godshall said. "Here was a sportsmen who saw something he knew darn well was illegal. He could have walked off and forgotten it, but he didn't."

Godshall said calls are increasing every day, and that he has been told by law enforcement officals that the number of successful prosecutions is also increasing.

The height of the hunter's year, the regular two-week antlered deer season, opens one-half hour before sunrise Monday, Nov. 28. The two-day antlerless deer season is scheduled for Dec. 16-17.

Game Commission officials said they expect reported harvests in excess of 100,000 deer this season, matching the yearly total for the past 10 years.

Vaughn almost makes jump from U.N.C.L.E. to FDR

By GRANT DILLMAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's a big jump from television's popular "Man from U.N.C.L.E." to a stage portrayal of Franklin D. Roosevelt but Robert Vaughn almost makes it in his one-man rendition of Dore Schary's "FDR" at the capital's National Theater.

The operating word is "almost." Vaughn does his best. But perhaps no actor could bring off the complex personality of the man who led the nation through the Depression and the worst of World War II, becoming in the process its most loved and despised modern president.

Vaughn deserves credit for trying, however. While the script tends to hurry the audience through the momentous peaks and valleys of Roosevelt's life, it vividly recalls the actions and statements that mobilized a nation and helped him win the White House four times.

It also illustrates the attitude that so infuriated his critics. One of FDR's first actions as president was to close the banks to save them from backruptcy. Later, discussing the legality of his action, he said, "if there is no law to get something done, you make a law."

Or again, weighing chances for his legislative program: "Once you're given power, you've got to use it, not shiver and groan and moan at every decision." And evaluating his friends and critics: "I'd rather have Will Rogers on my side than a lot of those senators."

There was his ill-fated plan to pack the Supreme Court — the "nine old men" who knocked down with monotonous regularity his early plans to combat the Depression. Roosevelt never publicly admitted that his ploy was a massive political blunder.

Privately, while resting at Warm Springs, Ga., from his landslide 1936 victory over Alf Landon, he could tell an aide facetiously, "I didn't want to pack the Court. I just wanted to revise it!" Then, becoming serious: "You want to know the truth? I made a mistake."

The most poignant moments, of course, deal with FDR's efforts to strengthen Britain for the inevitable showdown with Hitler, his fight with conservatives over the destroyers for bases deal and finally the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor — "a date which will live in infamy."

Through it all, Vaughn shuttles about the stage in a wheelchair, the cigarette holder that was FDR's trademark jutting challengingly in the air. He bears a striking resemblance to Roosevelt, particularly when he turns his head to provide a profile for the audience.

The Roosevelt voice is not quite there, however. It lacks the nasal mellifluence of the famed fireside chats. Vaughn explains by saying he never heard FDR's conversational voice.

To a participant in those times, it comes as something of a shock to realize that FDR has been followed in the White House by Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon, Ford and now Jimmy Carter. For them, "FDR" provides an effective touchstone to history.

Whether Vaughn's performance will stir similar feelings among younger theater goers, who lack the advantage of firsthand experience, is another matter.

Students grade, flunk professors

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — In a little role reversal, students at the University of Massachusetts have finished grading their professors —and some of them flunked.

A 128-page booklet prepared by the Academic Affairs Committee of the Student Senate lists the course, professor's name, salary and what students thought of the instructor and the course.

"It represents students educating each other about the state of things at UMass," said William Bluestein of the Undergraduate Economics Council, which helped prepare the guide.

"The only way for students to solve problems like this is to say, 'the hell with the bureaucracy, what do we need to know, and let's do it ourselves,'" he said.

The booklet, now being distributed to UMass' 23,000 students, rates the instructors on their sensitivity to the class, availability, exams, organization and whether they added to the student's motivation.

The guide, based on student evaluations of courses, grades instructors from A through F.

The course taught by one professor, for example, was rated between "barely adequate and adequate. Not recommended."

Fisher signed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Carrie Fisher, who costarred in "Star Wars," will head the cast of Universal Pictures' "I Want To Hold Your Hand," playing a teen-age activist. The daughter of Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher will play one of six New Jersey kids through the wacky happenings of the first Beatles tour of the United States.
